PART III

PRIVATE PROSECUTIONS

12 Interpretation in Part III

In this Part—

“private party” means a person authorized by section thirteen or fourteen to prosecute any offence.

13 Private prosecution on refusal of Prosecutor-General to prosecute

In all cases where the Prosecutor-General declines to prosecute for an alleged offence, any private party, who can show some substantial and peculiar interest in the issue of the trial arising out of some injury which he individually has suffered by the commission of the offence, may prosecute, in any court competent to try the offence, the person alleged to have committed it.

14 What other persons entitled to prosecute

The following shall possess the right of prosecution—

- (a) a spouse of the person against whom the offence was committed;
- (b) the legal guardians or curators of minors or mentally disordered or defective persons, in respect of offences committed against their wards;
- (c) the surviving spouse or children or, where there is no surviving spouse or child, any of the next-of-kin of any deceased person, in respect of any offence by which the death of such person is alleged to have been caused;
- (d) public bodies and persons on whom the right is specially conferred by statute, in respect of particular offences.

[Section amended by section 4 of Act 2 of 2016]

15 Private prosecutor may apply to court for warrant

Where, by virtue of the right of prosecution given to private parties by section thirteen or fourteen, any private party desires to prosecute for any offence any person for whose liberation from prison any warrant has been issued by the Prosecutor-General, such private party may apply to the High Court or, in case such court is not then sitting, to any judge, for a warrant for the further detention or, if he is on bail, for the detention of such person, and such court or judge shall make such order as to it or him seems right under the circumstances.

16 Certificate of Prosecutor-General that he or she declines to prosecute

(1) Except as is provided by subsection (4), it shall not be competent for any private party to obtain the process of any court for summoning any party to answer any charge, unless such private party produces to the officer authorised by law to issue such process a certificate signed by the Prosecutor-General that he or she has seen the statements or affidavits on which the charge is based and declines to prosecute at the public instance, and, subject to the conditions set forth in subsections (2) and (3), in every case in which the Prosecutor-General declines to prosecute he or she shall, at the request of the party intending to prosecute, grant the certificate required.

(2) The Prosecutor-General shall grant the certificate referred to in subsection (1) if—

- (a) there is produced to him or her by the private party a written request in the form of a sworn statement from which it appears to the Prosecutor-General that the private party—
 - (i) is the victim of the alleged offence, or is otherwise an interested person by virtue of having personally suffered, as a direct consequence of the alleged offence, an invasion of a legal right beyond that suffered by the public generally; and
 - (ii) has the means to conduct the private prosecution promptly and timeously; and
 - (iii) will conduct the private prosecution as an individual (whether personally or through his or her legal practitioner), or as the representative of a class of individuals recognised as a class for the purposes of the Class Actions Act [Chapter 8:17] (No. 10 of 1999);

and

- (b) no grounds exist in terms of subsection (3) for withholding the certificate.

(3) The Prosecutor-General may refuse to grant the certificate referred to in subsection (1) upon any one or more of the following grounds, namely—

- (a) that the conduct complained of by the private party does not disclose a criminal offence; or
- (b) that on the evidence available, there is no possibility (or only a remote possibility) of proving the charge against the accused beyond a reasonable doubt; or
- (c) whether the person to be prosecuted has adequate means to conduct a defence to the charge (in the case of any person who, but for the fact that the Prosecutor-General has declined to prosecute him or her, would have qualified for legal assistance at the expense of the State); or
- (d) that it is not in the interests of national security or the public interest generally to grant the certificate to the private party.

(4) When the right of prosecution referred to in this Part is possessed under any statute by any public body or person in respect of particular offences, subsections (1), (2) and (3) shall not apply.

[Section substituted by section 5 of Act 2 of 2016]

17 Private prosecutor may be ordered to give security for costs

Where a private prosecution is being or has been instituted by a person other than a public body or person described in section 14(d), the court may order him or her to give such security as the court may direct for the payment of any costs incurred by the accused person in respect of his or her defence, and where the court has made such an order no further steps shall be taken in the prosecution until the security has been given.

[Section substituted by section 6 of Act 2 of 2016]

18 Failure of private prosecutor to appear on appointed day

(1) If the prosecutor, being a private party, does not appear on the day appointed for appearance, the charge or complaint shall be dismissed unless the court sees reason to believe that such party was prevented from being present by circumstances beyond his control, in which case it may adjourn the hearing of the case.

(2) In the case of any dismissal in terms of subsection (1), the accused shall not be again liable to prosecution on the same charge by any private party, but no such dismissal shall prevent the Prosecutor-General, or a public prosecutor on the instructions of the Prosecutor-General, from afterwards taking up the case.

19 Mode of conducting private prosecutions

A private prosecution shall, subject to this Act, be proceeded with in the same manner as if it were being conducted at the public instance, except that all costs and expenses of the prosecution shall be paid by the party prosecuting, subject to any order that the court may make when the prosecution is finally concluded.

20 Competency of Prosecutor-General to take up and conduct prosecution at public instance

[Heading substituted by Act 5 of 2014]

In the case of a prosecution at the instance of a private party, the Prosecutor-General or the local public prosecutor may apply by motion to any court before which the prosecution is pending to stop all further proceedings in the case, in order that prosecution for the offence may be instituted or continued at the public instance and such court shall, in every such case, make an order in terms of the motion.

21 Deposit of money by private prosecutor

In the case of a criminal prosecution at the instance of a private party, the registrar or clerk of the court shall, for the service of any criminal summons or subpoena or execution of any warrant of arrest or other criminal process, demand and receive the prescribed fee.

22 Costs of private prosecution

(1) Where a person prosecuted at the instance of a private party is acquitted, the court in which the prosecution was brought may order the party that instituted the prosecution to pay to the party prosecuted the whole or any part of the expenses, including the costs both before and after committal, which may have been occasioned to him by the prosecution.

(2) Where the court, upon hearing the charge or complaint on a private prosecution, pronounces the same unfounded and vexatious, it shall award to the accused on his request such costs as it may think fit.

(3) Where a person prosecuted at the instance of a private party is convicted, the court may order the convicted person to pay the costs and expenses of the private prosecution in addition to any sum awarded in terms of Part XIX:

Provided that if the private prosecution was instituted after a certificate by the Prosecutor-General that he declined to prosecute the court may order the costs to be paid by the State.

(4) Any costs awarded in terms of this section shall be taxed according to the scale applicable in civil cases in the court concerned unless a special scale of costs for private prosecutions has been prescribed in rules of court.

PART IV

PRESCRIPTION OF OFFENCES

(b) if he on reasonable grounds believes that—

- (i) a warrant would be issued to him in terms of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section fifty if he applied for one; and

- (ii) the delay in obtaining a warrant would prevent the seizure or defeat the object of the search, as the case may be.

(2) Where a police officer has reason to suspect that an offence has been committed by any person on board a boat on inland waters, it shall be lawful for him to stop, go on board and search such boat without warrant and to seize any thing which he has reasonable grounds for believing will afford evidence as to the commission of an offence under any law.

(3) Any person who, when called upon in terms of subsection (2) to stop a boat under his control, fails to comply immediately with such request shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level four or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

(2) A police officer to whom an article is delivered under subsection (1)(a) or (b) shall forthwith, and in any event not later than forty-eight hours after such delivery, make and deliver the full receipt referred to in section 49(2), and any failure to do so entitles the owner or possessor thereof to demand the return of the seized article upon expiry of that period, unless the article or articles in question are of a kind whose possession is intrinsically unlawful.

[Subsection substituted by section 19 of Act 2 of 2016]

(3) Any police officer may stop and interrogate any person who is found at any time between sunset and sunrise carrying or transporting any goods or articles of any description and if—

[Subsection inserted by section 20 of Act 2 of 2016]

55 Resistance against entry or search

(1) A police officer who may lawfully search any person or premises or who may enter any premises in terms of section fifty-four may use such force as may reasonably be necessary to overcome any resistance against such search or entry, including the breaking of any door or window of the premises:

Provided that the police officer shall first audibly demand admission to the premises and notify the purpose for which he seeks to enter the premises.

(2) The proviso to subsection (1) shall not apply where the police officer concerned is on reasonable grounds of the opinion that any article which is the subject of the search may be destroyed or disposed of if the provisions of that proviso are first complied with.

56 Award of damages for false information on oath

Where any person falsely gives information on oath for the purposes of subsection (1) of section fifty and a warrant is issued and executed on such information, and such person is in consequence of such false information convicted of perjury or any statutory offence involving the making of a false statement on oath, the court convicting such person may, upon the application of any person who has suffered any damage in consequence of the unlawful entry, search or seizure, as the case may be, or upon the application of the prosecutor acting on the instructions of that person, award compensation in respect of such damage and the provisions of section three hundred and sixty-two shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the award.

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a police officer who seizes any article referred to in section 49 or to whom any such article is delivered in terms of this Part or to whom an article seized in terms of any other enactment is delivered to be dealt with in terms of this Part, shall—

- (a) take it or cause it to be taken forthwith and delivered to a place of security under the control of a police officer; and
- (b) have all relevant particulars in relation to it and its seizure entered in an inventory (which may be an electronic inventory, provided that a manual or material back-up of the inventory is maintained simultaneously) kept at the place of custody, namely a sufficient description of the article, details of the date and particulars of the full receipt (if any) issued in relation thereto, and the identification number and mark assigned to it; and

- (c) endeavour to ensure that the article, if vulnerable to damage or contamination from moisture or dust, is kept free from contamination by moisture and dust, and that the place of security where it is lodged is protected from access by unauthorised persons; and
- (d) be held, subject to section 59, until the criminal proceedings which are instituted in relation to that article—
 - (i) have been abandoned or discontinued or are concluded otherwise than with the conviction of the accused, in which event the custodian police officer shall forthwith restore any such article to the accused or the owner thereof, as may be appropriate, unless the article is one whose possession is intrinsically unlawful; or
 - (ii) have resulted in the conviction of the accused, in which event the convicting court shall—
 - A. order any such thing to be restored to the accused or the owner thereof, as may be appropriate; or
 - B. order any such article to be forfeited to the State or destroyed.

(2) A police officer may, if the article is stolen property or property suspected to be stolen, with the consent of the person from whom it was seized, deliver the article to the person from whom, in the opinion of such police officer, such article was stolen, and shall warn such person to hold such article available for production at any resultant criminal proceedings, if required to do so.

(3) If the seized article needs to be destroyed or disposed of because it is perishable or has become a hazard to human health or safety, and there is any valid reason for not returning the article in question to the owner or possessor thereof or other person to whom a full receipt was given in respect of its seizure, then the police officer shall—

- (a) issue to the owner or possessor thereof or other holder of the full receipt a notice of destruction or disposal of a seized article substantially in the form set out in the Eleventh Schedule, in which the owner, possessor or holder is also notified of his or her right to object to the proposed destruction or disposal within fourteen days of the date of issuance of the notice; and
- (b) not earlier than fourteen days thereafter destroy the article or have it destroyed, or dispose of the article in such manner as the circumstances may require; and
- (c) at least twenty-four hours before the day on which the article is to be destroyed or disposed of, notify in writing the person to whom the notice of destruction or disposal of the seized article was issued, and afford the notified person or his or her authorised representative an opportunity to witness the destruction or disposal.

(4) Immediately upon receiving any objection to a notice of destruction or disposal of a seized article, a police officer shall apply for a warrant of destruction or disposal of a seized article in terms of subsection (5), upon not less than seven days' written notice to the owner or possessor thereof, or, if his or her whereabouts or identity cannot be ascertained after due inquiry, upon delivery of the notice to the same person or in the same manner and at the same place as the receipt referred to in section 49(2) was delivered.

(5) An application for a warrant of destruction or disposal of a seized article shall be made by a police officer to a magistrate or justice (other than a police officer) having jurisdiction over the area where the article was seized, for which purpose the police officer shall swear by affidavit that—

- (a) the seized article (of a description and having the identification number specified in the affidavit) needs to be destroyed or disposed of because it is perishable or has become a hazard to human health or safety; and
- (b) there is a valid reason (specified in the affidavit) for not returning the article in question to the owner or possessor thereof or other person to whom a full receipt was given in respect of its seizure; and
- (c) a full receipt in respect of the article was issued on a specified date; and
- (d) written notice of the time and place of the application for the warrant was timeously given to the owner or possessor thereof or other person mentioned in paragraph (b).

(6) In an application for a warrant of destruction or disposal of a seized article the magistrate or justice shall, if the owner or possessor thereof, or other person mentioned in subsection (5)(b), is present, allow—

- (a) him or her to make representations in person, in writing or through a legal practitioner, in opposition to the application; and
- (b) the applicant police officer to respond to any submissions made under paragraph (a);

but no postponement of the application shall be entertained, and no submissions shall be made by either party except those concerning—

- (c) the truth or otherwise of any statement referred to in subsection (5)(a), (b), (c) or (d); and

- (d) any allegation by the applicant police officer that the notified party or the party who is opposing the application is not entitled to the possession or ownership of the seized article by reason of not having a full receipt in relation thereto or for some other lawful reason;

and the application must be determined on the same day on which it was made, whether the notified person is present or not.

[Section substituted by section 21 of Act 2 of 2016]

58A Continued retention of seized articles if institution of criminal proceedings is delayed

(1) If within twenty-one working days from the date—

- (a) when an article was seized and receipt therefor was given (provided that the date shown on the receipt shall be determinative if it is dated later than the day of seizure); or
 (b) when a person referred to in section 49(3) receives a receipt for any article previously seized from him or her;

no prosecution of an offence in respect of which the seized article is required as an exhibit is initiated, that is to say—

- (c) no summons is issued to the accused person for the prosecution of the offence; or
 (d) no statement of the charge is lodged with the clerk of the magistrates court before which the accused is to be tried, where the offence is to be tried summarily; or
 (e) no indictment has been served upon the accused person, where the person is to be tried before the High Court;

then the seized article shall (unless the article in question is one whose possession is intrinsically unlawful) be returned as soon as possible by the police officer who detained it, or by any other person acting in his or her stead, to the premises, place, vehicle, vessel or aircraft from which it was removed or, where that is impracticable, be available for collection at such place as the police officer shall direct the owner or possessor thereof to go, unless the police officer earlier, upon at least seventy-two hours' notice to the owner or possessor thereof, serves upon him or her a written notice of continued retention of the seized article, in which the police officer shall—

- (f) affirm that investigations relating to the offence in respect of which the seized article is required as an exhibit are ongoing and are being actively pursued without undue delay; and
 (g) afford the owner or possessor thereof an opportunity to lodge at a specified police station a written objection to the retention of the article within forty-eight hours of the date of issuance of the notice of continued retention; and if no such objection is lodged, the seized article may be retained in custody by the police until the pertinent criminal proceedings have been concluded, abandoned or discontinued and the seized article dealt with in accordance with this Part.

(2) If the owner or possessor of a seized article is not served with a notice of continued retention after the expiry of the period specified in subsection (1) and no prosecution in respect of the seized article is initiated within that time, then the owner or possessor has the right to recover the article (unless it is one whose possession is intrinsically unlawful) from the police upon mere production of the receipt issued to him or her by a police officer in relation thereto, unless a police officer forthwith delivers to the owner or possessor the notice of continued retention, and subsection (1) shall thereupon apply in relation to such notice.

(3) Immediately upon receiving any objection to a notice of continued retention of a seized article, a police officer shall apply for a warrant of further retention of the seized article in terms of subsection (4), upon not less than seven days' written notice to the owner or possessor thereof, or, if his or her whereabouts or identity cannot be ascertained after due inquiry, upon delivery of the notice to the same person or in the same manner and at the same place as the receipt referred to in section 49(2) was delivered.

(4) An application for a warrant of further retention of a seized article shall be made by a police officer to a magistrate or justice (other than a police officer) having jurisdiction over the area where the article was seized, for which purpose the police officer shall swear by affidavit that the seized article (of a description and having the identification number specified in the affidavit) is required in evidence in criminal proceedings and that—

- (a) investigations in respect thereof are ongoing and are being actively pursued without undue delay; and
 (b) a full receipt in respect of the article was issued on a specified date; and
 (c) written notice of the time and place of the application for the warrant of further retention of the seized article was timeously given to the owner or possessor thereof or other person mentioned in subsection (3).

(5) In an application for a warrant of further retention of a seized article the magistrate or justice shall, if the owner or possessor thereof, or other person mentioned in subsection (3), is present, allow—

- (a) him or her to make representations in person, in writing or through a legal practitioner, in opposition to the application; and
 (b) the applicant police officer to respond to any submissions made under paragraph (a);

but no postponement of the application shall be entertained, and no submissions shall be made by either party except those concerning—

- (c) the truth or otherwise of any statement referred to in subsection (4) (a), (b) or (c); and
- (d) any allegation by the applicant police officer that the notified party or the party who is opposing the application is not entitled to the possession or ownership of the seized article by reason of not having a full receipt in relation thereto or for some other lawful reason;

and the application must be determined on the same day on which it was made, whether the notified person is present or not.

(6) The effect of—

- (a) the issuance of a warrant of further retention of a seized article is that the article may be retained in custody by the police until the pertinent criminal proceedings have been concluded, abandoned or discontinued and the seized article dealt with in accordance with this Part; or
- (b) the refusal to issue a warrant of further retention of the seized article is that it must be returned without delay to the holder of the receipt issued in respect thereof, subject to any directions the magistrate or justice may give for the preservation or safe custody of the same until the expiry of a specified period or on the initiation of a prosecution in connection therewith, whichever event happens earlier.

(7) Any holder of the receipt referred to in subsection (6)(b) who fails to comply with any directions given to him or her for the preservation or safe custody of the article returned to him or her until the expiry of a specified period or on the initiation of a prosecution in connection therewith, whichever event happens earlier, shall be guilty of the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice contrary to section 184 of the Criminal Law Code and liable to the penalties therefor.

(1) Subject to subsection (2), if in connection with any article referred to in section 58(1), and regardless of whether a notice of further retention of the seized article or warrant of further retention of the seized article has been issued in relation to the article—

- (a) no criminal proceedings are instituted; or
- (b) it appears that such article is not required at the trial for purposes of evidence or for purposes of an order of court; or

- (iii) if no person may lawfully possess the article (whether by reason of its being an article whose possession is intrinsically unlawful, or otherwise) or if the police officer concerned does not know of any person who may lawfully possess the article, be forfeited to the State.

[Subsection amended by section 22 of Act 2 of 2016]

(2) If the person who may lawfully possess the article in question is known and has not applied for the return or delivery of the article, notice shall be sent by registered post to his last known address that he may take possession of the article, and if such person fails to take possession of the article within three months from the date of such notice being sent, the article shall be forfeited to the State.

(3) Where an article has been forfeited to the State in terms of paragraph (iii) of subsection (1) or subsection (2), a magistrate within whose area of jurisdiction the article was, in terms of paragraph (c) of section fifty-eight, retained in police custody may at any time within a period of three years from the date of the original seizure by a police officer or delivery to a police officer, as the case may be, of the article, upon the application of any person who claims that any right referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is vested in him, inquire into and determine such right and, if the magistrate finds that the article—

(6) If, in making an order under subsection (3)(a) or (b) in favour of an applicant, it appears to the magistrate, from the evidence presented before him or her in the course of hearing the application, that—

(2) The court may, for the purpose of making any order in terms of subsection (1), hear such additional evidence, whether by affidavit or orally, as it may think fit.

(3) If the judge or magistrate concerned does not, at the conclusion of the relevant proceedings, make an order in terms of subsection (1), the registrar or clerk of the court may hand the article to the person who, in terms of paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (1), is entitled to the article and, if he is in any doubt as to who is entitled to the article, shall refer the matter to a judge or magistrate, as the case may be, who may make any order referred to in subsection (1) and for that purpose may hear such additional evidence, whether by affidavit or orally, as he may think fit:

(5) Where the court makes an order in terms of paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (1) or subsection (3), the provisions of subsection (2) of section fifty-nine shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in respect of the person in whose favour the order is made.

(6) If circumstances so require or if the criminal proceedings in question cannot for any reason be disposed of, the judge or magistrate concerned may make any order referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (1) at any stage of the proceedings.

62 Forfeiture of article to State

(1) A court convicting any person of any offence may, without notice to any other person, declare forfeited to the State—and which was seized in terms of this Part:

Provided that such forfeiture shall not affect any right referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (4) if it is proved that the person who claims such right did not know that the weapon, instrument, vehicle, container or other article was being used or would be used for the purpose of or in connection with the commission of the offence in question or, as the case may be, for the conveyance or removal of the stolen property in question, or that he could not prevent such use, and that he may lawfully possess such weapon, instrument, vehicle, container or other article, as the case may be.

(2) A court convicting any person or which finds an accused not guilty of any offence shall declare forfeited to the State any article seized under this Part whose possession is intrinsically unlawful.

(4) Any judge or magistrate of the court in question may at any time within a period of three years from the date of declaration of forfeiture of an article in terms of subsection (1), upon the application of any person, other than the accused, who claims that any right referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is vested in him, inquire into and determine any such right and, if the court finds that facts referred to in the proviso to subsection (1) are proved and that the article—

- (a) is the property of the applicant, the court shall—
 - (i) set aside the declaration of forfeiture and direct that the article be returned to such person; or
 - (ii) if the State has disposed of the article, direct that the applicant be compensated by the State to the extent to which the State has been enriched by such disposal;

 - (i) direct that the article be sold by public auction and that the said seller be paid out of the proceeds of the sale an amount equal to the value of his right under the contract of the article, but not exceeding the proceeds of the sale; or
 - (ii) if the State has disposed of the article in question, direct that the said seller be compensated by the State by an amount equal to the value of his rights under the contract to the article, but not exceeding the extent to which the State has been enriched by such disposal.

(5) If a determination by the court of an application in terms of subsection (4) is adverse to the applicant, he may appeal therefrom as if it were a conviction by the court making the determination, and such appeal may be heard either separately or jointly with an appeal against the conviction as a result whereof the declaration of forfeiture was made or against a sentence imposed as a result of such conviction.

(6) When determining any rights in terms of subsection (4), the record of the criminal proceedings in which the declaration of forfeiture was made shall form part of the relevant proceedings, and the court making the determination may hear additional evidence, whether by affidavit or orally, as it may think fit.

(7) If, in making an order under subsection (4)(a) or (b) in favour of an applicant, it appears to the judge or magistrate, from the evidence presented before him or her in the course of hearing the application, that—

- (a) the amount, if any, realised by the State when disposing of the article in question was inadequate to cover any costs reasonably incurred in securing the safe custody of the article; and
- (b) the applicant was negligent or unduly dilatory in pursuing his or her claim to the article in question; the judge or magistrate shall afford the State an opportunity to submit a claim for the recovery of any costs reasonably incurred in securing the safe custody of the article, and, if such submission is made—
- (c) may grant the whole or any part of such costs as to the judge or magistrate appears reasonable:

Provided that such costs must not exceed the reasonably estimated value of the article to be returned, or the value of the compensation awarded or sale price realised under this section, as the case may be; and
- (d) shall direct the amount of the costs awarded under paragraph (c) to be deducted from any compensation payable or sale price realised under this section.

113C Subpoenaing of witnesses

(1) A public prosecutor who has initiated confirmation proceedings, or an accused in respect of whom those proceedings are being or are to be held, or the latter's legal representative, may compel the attendance of any person at those proceedings to give evidence or to produce any book or document, by means of a subpoena, issued in the manner prescribed by the rules of court, at the instance of the public prosecutor or accused, as the case may be, by the clerk of the magistrate in which the proceedings are being or are to be held.

(2) If a magistrate conducting confirmation proceedings believes that any person may be able to give evidence or to produce any book or document which is relevant to the subject of the examination, he or she may direct the clerk of the magistrate court to issue, in the manner mentioned in subsection (1), a subpoena requiring such person to appear before him or her at a time mentioned therein, to give evidence or to produce any book or document.

(3) Any such subpoena shall be served in the manner prescribed by the rules of court, upon the person to whom it is addressed.

(4) A magistrate conducting confirmation proceedings may call as a witness any person in attendance, although not subpoenaed as a witness, or may recall and re-examine any person already examined as a witness.

(5) Every person subpoenaed to attend confirmation proceedings shall obey the subpoena and remain in attendance throughout the proceedings, unless excused by the magistrate conducting the proceedings.

[Section inserted by section 6 of Act 9 of 2006.]

113D Arrest and punishment for failure to obey subpoena or to remain in attendance

(1) If any person subpoenaed to attend confirmation proceedings without reasonable cause fails to obey the subpoena, and it appears from the return or from evidence given under oath that the subpoena was served upon the person to whom it is directed, or if any person who has attended it in obedience to a subpoena fails to remain in attendance, the magistrate conducting the proceedings may issue a warrant directing that such person be arrested and brought at a time and place stated in the warrant, or as soon thereafter as possible, before him or her or any other magistrate.

(2) When the person in question has been arrested under the said warrant, he or she may be detained thereunder before the magistrate who issued it or in any prison or lock-up or other place of detention or in the custody of the person who is in charge of him or her, with a view to securing the person's presence as a witness at the confirmation proceedings, or such magistrate may release him or her on a recognizance, with or without sureties, for his or her appearance to give evidence as required and for his or her appearance at the inquiry mentioned in subsection (3).

(3) The magistrate may in a summary manner inquire into the said person's failure to obey the subpoena or to remain in attendance, and unless it is proved that the said person had a reasonable excuse for such failure, the magistrate may sentence him or her to a fine not exceeding level three or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

(4) Any person sentenced by a magistrate to a fine or imprisonment in terms of subsection (3) shall have the same right of appeal as if he or she had been convicted and sentenced by a magistrates court in a criminal trial.

(5) If a person who has entered into a recognizance for his or her appearance to give evidence at confirmation proceedings or for his or her appearance at an inquiry referred to in subsection (3) fails so to appear, he or she may, apart from the estreatment of his or her recognizance, be dealt with as if he or she had failed to obey a subpoena to attend confirmation proceedings.

[Section inserted by section 6 of Act 9 of 2006.]

113E When tender of witness' expenses not necessary

No prepayment or tender of expenses shall be necessary in the case of a person who is required to give evidence at confirmation proceedings and who is also within five kilometres of the premises in which such proceedings are being held.

[Section inserted by section 6 of Act 9 of 2006.]

113F Witness refusing to be examined or to produce evidence may be committed

(1) Whenever any person appearing, either in obedience to a subpoena or by virtue of a warrant, or being present and being verbally required by the magistrate to give evidence at confirmation proceedings, refuses to be sworn or, having been sworn, refuses to answer such questions as are put to him or her, or refuses or fails to produce any document or thing which he or she is required to produce, without in any such case offering any just excuse for such refusal or failure, the magistrate may adjourn the proceedings for any period not exceeding eight clear days, and may in the meantime by warrant commit the person so refusing to prison unless he or she sooner consents to do what is required of him or her.

(2) If a person referred to in subsection (1), upon being brought up upon the adjourned hearing, again refuses to, do what is so required of him or her, the magistrate may, if he or she sees fit, again adjourn the proceedings, and by order commit him or her for a like period and so again from time to time until such person consents to do what is required of him or her.

(3) An appeal shall lie from any order of committal in terms of subsection (1) or (2) to the Supreme Court, which may make such order on the appeal as to it seems just.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the magistrate from confirming the accused's statement in the meantime according to any other sufficient evidence taken by him or her.

(5) No person shall be bound to produce at confirmation proceedings any document or thing not specified or otherwise sufficiently described in the subpoena unless he or she actually has it with him or her.

[Section repealed by section 7 of Act 9 of 2006.]

115 Failure to mention fact relevant to allegation may be used as evidence

If an accused alleges during the course of any criminal proceedings that a statement allegedly made by him which is tendered by the State in evidence was not made by him or was not made freely and voluntarily without his having been unduly influenced thereto and it is proved by the State that—

- (a) the same statement was produced in terms of subsection (2) of section one hundred and thirteen; and
- (b) the accused, when requested to do so in terms of subsection (4) of that section, failed to mention any fact, being a fact which, in the circumstances existing at the time, he could reasonably have been expected to have mentioned; the magistrate or the court, as the case may be, in determining whether the statement was made by the accused or is admissible, may draw such inferences from the failure as appear proper and the failure may, on the basis of such inferences, be treated as evidence corroborating any other evidence given against the accused.

115A Verification of witnesses' depositions in certain circumstances

(1) Where, at any time before an accused is brought to trial for an offence, a witness has made a deposition giving material information relating to the offence, and it appears to the prosecutor that—

- (a) the witness is dangerously ill; or
- (b) the evidence of the witness is given in his or her capacity as an expert witness, and that the nature of the witness's professional commitments is such as to render it difficult to secure his or her attendance at the trial on any given day, or
- (c) for any other reason it may not be possible to secure the attendance of such witness at the trial;

the prosecutor may, if so authorised by the Prosecutor-General, make an urgent ex parte application to a magistrate in chambers for an order to verify the deposition in terms of this section.

(2) An application in terms of subsection (1) shall be accompanied by—

- (a) the deposition referred to in subsection (1); and
- (b) a statement of the reasons why it appears to the prosecutor that it is necessary for the deposition to be verified in terms of this section.

(3) If the magistrate grants leave in terms of subsection (1), the magistrate shall, by written order delivered by hand to the accused or his or her legal representative, if any—

- (a) summon the accused and his or her legal representative, if any, to attend a conference to be held in private at the time and place (being a magistrates court or any other place selected by the magistrate for the purpose) specified in the order for the purpose of verifying the witness's deposition in the presence of the magistrate, the prosecutor, the witness and any police officer concerned with the investigation of the alleged offence:

Provided that—

- (i) the accused or his or her legal representative, if any, shall have not less than three days' notice (including Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays) of the time and place of the conference, and
 - (ii) the magistrate may, upon the written request of the accused or his or her legal representative, and after consultation with the prosecutor, postpone or bring forward the date of the conference,
- and
- (b) inform the accused that, in the event of failure by him or her to comply with the order, the provisions of section 255 may apply to his or her case.
- (4) At a conference convened in terms of this section—
- (a) the prosecutor shall cause the deposition of the witness to be read over or made available to the accused, and thereupon the accused shall be entitled, personally or by his or her legal representative, if any, to cross-examine the witness, and in such case the prosecutor may re-examine the witness; and
 - (b) the magistrate may put any question he or she sees fit to the prosecutor, the accused or his or her legal representative, or the witness.
- (5) During a conference convened in terms of this section the magistrate shall make or cause to be made a record of—
- (a) the time and place of the conference, the names of all those who attended at the conference and the capacities in which they so attended; and
 - (b) the examination or re-examination of the witness, if any.
- (6) At the conclusion of a conference convened in terms of this section—
- (a) the magistrate, if he or she is satisfied that the deposition which is the subject of the verification proceedings—
 - (i) was made by a witness referred to in subsection (1)(a), (b) or (c) and
 - (ii) may properly be admitted in criminal proceedings for the prosecution of the offence to which it relates as prima facie proof of the evidence deposed to therein; shall verify the deposition by endorsing upon it the word “verified” and his or her signature and the place and date of verification;

and
 - (b) the magistrate and the prosecutor shall sign the record referred to in subsection (5) and, if the accused and his or her legal representative, if any, attended at the conference, the magistrate shall invite the accused or the legal representative to sign it:

Provided that if the accused or his or her legal representative refuses to sign the record, the magistrate shall note that fact in the record, and the reasons for the refusal, if any are given.
- (7) If the accused or his or her legal representative fails to attend a conference convened in terms of this section after having been given an opportunity to do so under subsection (3), then subsection (4)(b) and subsections (5) and (6) shall apply, with any changes that may be necessary, as if the accused or his or her legal representative were in attendance.

[Section inserted by section 8 of Act 9 of 2006.]

- (1) Subject to subsection (2), in any proceedings in any court—

 - (ii) purports to have been certified as correct under the hand of the person who transcribes such record; shall, upon its mere production by any person, be prima facie evidence of such statement or evidence, as the case may be, and, if the same was made or given as aforesaid through an interpreter or interpreters, of the correctness of the interpretation.

- (2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), the terms of—
 - (a) any statement produced in confirmation proceedings shall not be proved except by the production of the statement as confirmed by the magistrate in terms of section 113(3) or, where the statement is not so confirmed, by calling as a witness the person to whom the statement was made;

(b) any deposition which was the subject of verification proceedings shall not be proved except by the production of the deposition as verified by the magistrate in terms of section 115A(6)(a) or, where the deposition is not so verified, by calling as a witness the person who made the deposition, unless the court, in its discretion (where the witness cannot be found after diligent search, or cannot be compelled to attend the court), allows the deposition to be read as evidence at the trial, subject to the conditions mentioned in section 255.

(3) If the accused is indicted for trial before the High Court, a copy of any of the following documents as may relate to his or her case shall be served upon the accused together with the other documents served upon him or her in terms of section 66—

PART IX

BAIL

115C Compelling reasons for denying bail and burden of proof in bail proceedings

(1) In any application, petition, motion, appeal, review or other proceeding before a court in which the grant or denial of bail or the legality of the grant or denial of bail is in issue, the grounds specified in section 117(2), being grounds upon which a court may find that it is in the interests of justice that an accused should be detained in custody until he or she is dealt with in accordance with the law, are to be considered as compelling reasons for the denial of bail by a court.

(2) Where an accused person who is in custody in respect of an offence applies to be admitted to bail—

- (a) before a court has convicted him or her of the offence—
 - (i) the prosecution shall bear the burden of showing, on a balance of probabilities, that there are compelling reasons justifying his or her continued detention, unless the offence in question is one specified in the Third Schedule;
 - (ii) the accused person shall, if the offence in question is one specified in—
 - A. Part I of the Third Schedule, bear the burden of showing, on a balance of probabilities, that it is in the interests of justice for him or her to be released on bail, unless the court determines that, in relation to any specific allegation made by the prosecution, the prosecution shall bear that burden;
 - B. Part II of the Third Schedule, bear the burden of showing, on a balance of probabilities, that exceptional circumstances exist which in the interests of justice permit his or her release on bail;
- (b) after he or she has been convicted of the offence, he or she shall bear the burden of showing, on a balance of probabilities, that it is in the interests of justice for him or her to be released on bail.

[Section inserted by section 28 of Act 2 of 2016]

116 Power to admit to bail

Subject to this section and sections 32 and 34, a person may, upon an application made in terms of section 117A, be admitted to bail or have his or her conditions of bail altered—

- (a) in respect of any offence, by a judge at any time after he or she has appeared in court on a charge and before sentence is imposed;
- (b) in respect of any offence, except an offence specified in the Third Schedule, by a magistrate within whose area of jurisdiction the accused is in custody at any time after he or she has appeared in court on a charge and before sentence is imposed:

Provided that, with the personal consent of the Prosecutor-General, a magistrate may admit a person to bail or alter a person's conditions of bail in respect of any offence;

- (c) if he or she is a person whose case is adjourned in terms of section 55(1) of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10] or in respect of whom an order has been made in terms of section 351(4), by a judge or by any magistrate within whose area of jurisdiction he or she is in custody:

Provided that—

- (i) the Prosecutor-General, in the case of any application to a judge, in terms of section 117A, or the local public prosecutor, in the case of any application to a magistrate in terms of section 117A, shall be given reasonable notice of any such application;
- (ii) where an application in terms of section 117A is determined by a judge or magistrate, a further application in terms of section 117A may only be made, whether to the judge or magistrate who has determined the previous application or to any other judge or magistrate, if such application

- is based on facts which were not placed before the judge or magistrate who determined the previous application and which have arisen or been discovered after that determination;
- (iii) a magistrate shall not, without the personal consent of the Prosecutor-General, admit a person to bail or alter a person's conditions of bail in respect of an offence specified in the Third Schedule.

117 Entitlement to bail

(1) Subject to this section and section 32, a person who is in custody in respect of an offence shall be entitled to be released on bail at any time after he or she has appeared in court on a charge and before sentence is imposed, unless the court finds that it is in the interests of justice that he or she should be detained in custody.

(2) The refusal to grant bail and the detention of an accused in custody shall be in the interests of justice where one or more of the following grounds are established—

- (a) where there is a likelihood that the accused, if he or she were released on bail, will—
- (i) endanger the safety of the public or any particular person or will commit an offence referred to in the First Schedule; or
 - (ii) not stand his or her trial or appear to receive sentence; or
 - (iii) attempt to influence or intimidate witnesses or to conceal or destroy evidence; or
 - (iv) undermine or jeopardise the objectives or proper functioning of the criminal justice system, including the bail system;

or

- (b) where in exceptional circumstances there is the likelihood that the release of the accused will disturb the public order or undermine public peace or security.

(3) In considering whether the ground referred to in—

- (a) subsection (2)(a)(i) has been established, the court shall, where applicable, take into account the following factors, namely—
- (i) the degree of violence towards others implicit in the charge against the accused;
 - (ii) any threat of violence which the accused may have made to any person;
 - (iii) the resentment the accused is alleged to harbour against any person;
 - (iv) any disposition of the accused to commit offences referred to in the First Schedule, as evident from his or her past conduct;
 - (v) any evidence that the accused previously committed an offence referred to in the First Schedule while released on bail;
 - (vi) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account;
- (b) subsection (2)(a)(ii) has been established, the court shall take into account—
- (i) the ties of the accused to the place of trial;
 - (ii) the existence and location of assets held by the accused;
 - (iii) the accused's means of travel and his or her possession of or access to travel documents;
 - (iv) the nature and gravity of the offence or the nature and gravity of the likely penalty therefor;
 - (v) the strength of the case for the prosecution and the corresponding incentive of the accused to flee;
 - (vi) the efficacy of the amount or nature of the bail and enforceability of any bail conditions;
 - (vii) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account;
- (c) subsection (2)(a)(iii) has been established, the court shall take into account—
- (i) whether the accused is familiar with any witness or the evidence;
 - (ii) whether any witness has made a statement;
 - (iii) whether the investigation is completed;
 - (iv) the accused's relationship with any witness and the extent to which the witness may be influenced by the accused;
 - (v) the efficacy of the amount or nature of the bail and enforceability of any bail conditions;
 - (vi) the ease with which any evidence can be concealed or destroyed;
 - (vii) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account;
- (d) subsection (2)(a)(iv) has been established, the court shall take into account—
- (i) whether the accused supplied false information at arrest or during bail proceedings;
 - (ii) whether the accused is in custody on another charge or is released on licence in terms of the Prisons Act [Chapter 7:11];
 - (iii) any previous failure by the accused to comply with bail conditions;
 - (iv) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account;
- (e) subsection (2)(b) has been established, the court shall, where applicable, take into account the following factors, namely—

- (i) whether the nature of the offence and the circumstances under which the offence was committed is likely to induce a sense of shock or outrage in the community where the offence was committed;
- (ii) whether the shock or outrage of the community where the offence was committed might lead to public disorder if the accused is released;
- (iii) whether the safety of the accused might be jeopardised by his or her release;
- (iv) whether the sense of peace and security among members of the public will be undermined or jeopardised by the release of the accused;
- (v) whether the release of the accused will undermine or jeopardise the public confidence in the criminal justice system;
- (vi) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account.

(4) In considering any question in subsection (2) the court shall decide the matter by weighing the interests of justice against the right of the accused to his or her personal freedom and in particular the prejudice he or she is likely to suffer if he or she were to be detained in custody, taking into account, where applicable, the following factors, namely—

- (a) the period for which the accused has already been in custody since his or her arrest;
- (b) the probable period of detention until the disposal or conclusion of the trial if the accused is not released on bail;
- (c) the reason for any delay in the disposal or conclusion of the trial and any fault on the part of the accused with regard to such delay;
- (d) any impediment in the preparation of the accused's defence or any delay in obtaining legal representation which may be brought about by the detention of the accused;
- (e) the state of health of the accused;
- (f) any other factor which in the opinion of the court should be taken into account.

(5) Notwithstanding the fact that the prosecution does not oppose the granting of bail, the court has the duty to weigh up the personal interests of the accused against the interests of justice as contemplated in subsection (4).

(6) Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, where an accused is charged with an offence referred to in—

- (a) Part I of the Third Schedule, the judge or (subject to proviso (iii) to section 116) the magistrate hearing the matter shall order that the accused be detained in custody until he or she is dealt with in accordance with the law, unless the accused, having been given a reasonable opportunity to do so, adduces evidence which satisfies the judge or magistrate that exceptional circumstances exist which in the interests of justice permit his or her release;
- (b) Part II of the Third Schedule, the judge or (subject to proviso (iii) to section 116) the magistrate hearing the matter shall order that the accused be detained in custody until he or she is dealt with in accordance with the law, unless the accused, having been given a reasonable opportunity to do so, adduces evidence which satisfies the judge or magistrate that the interests of justice permit his or her release.

(7) Where a person has applied for bail in respect of an offence referred to in the Third Schedule—

- (a) the Prosecutor-General; or
- (b) the Minister responsible for the administration of the Public Order and Security Act [Chapter 11:17], in respect of offence referred to in paragraph 6 of Part I of the Third Schedule; may issue a certificate stating that it is intended to charge the person with the offence.

(8) If the Minister responsible for the administration of the Extradition Act [Chapter 9:08], certifies in writing that a person who has applied for bail has been extradited to Zimbabwe from a foreign country and that the Minister has given an undertaking to the government or other responsible authority of that country—

- (a) that the accused person will not be admitted to bail while he or she is in Zimbabwe, the judge or magistrate hearing the matter shall not admit the accused person to bail;
- (b) that the accused person will not be admitted to bail while he or she is in Zimbabwe except on certain conditions which the Minister shall specify in his or her certificate, the judge or magistrate hearing the matter shall not admit the accused person to bail except on those conditions:

Provided that the judge or magistrate may fix further conditions, not inconsistent with the conditions specified by the Minister on the grant of bail to the accused person.

(9) A document purporting to be a certificate issued by a Minister or the Prosecutor-General in terms of subsection (7) or (8) shall be admissible in any proceedings on its production by any person as prima facie evidence of its contents.

[Section substituted by section 9 of Act 9 of 2006.]

117A Application for bail, bail proceedings and record thereof

(1) Subject to the proviso to section 116, an accused person may at any time apply verbally or in writing to the judge or magistrate before whom he or she is appearing to be admitted to bail immediately or may make such application in writing to a judge or magistrate.

- (2) Every written application for bail shall be made in such form as may be prescribed in rules of court.
- (3) Every application in terms of subsection (2) shall be disposed of without undue delay.
- (4) In bail proceedings the court may—
- (a) postpone such proceedings;
 - (b) subject to subsection (5), receive—

 - (iv) statements not on oath made by the accused;
 - (c) require the prosecutor or the accused to adduce evidence;
 - (d) require the prosecutor to place on record the reasons for not opposing bail.
- (5) In bail proceedings the accused is compelled to inform the court whether—
- (a) the accused has previously been convicted of any offence; and
 - (b) there are any charges pending against him or her and whether he or she has been released on bail in respect of those charges.
- (6) Where the legal representative of an accused submits the information referred to in subsection (5) the accused shall be required by the court to declare whether he or she confirms such information.

(7) The record of the bail proceedings excluding the information referred to in subsection (5), shall form part of the record of the trial of the accused following upon such bail proceedings:

Provided that if the accused elects to testify during the course of the bail proceedings the court must inform him or her that anything he or she says may be used against him or her at his or her trial and such evidence becomes admissible in any subsequent proceedings.

- (8) Any accused who wilfully—
- (a) fails or refuses to comply with subsection (5); or
 - (b) furnishes the court with false information required in terms of subsection (5); shall be guilty of an offence and liable to fine not exceeding level seven or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years or both.

(9) The court may make the release of an accused subject to conditions which, in the court's opinion, are in the interests of justice.

(10) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any law, no accused shall, for the purposes of bail proceedings, have access to any information, record or document relating to the offence in question, which is contained in, or forms part of, a police docket, including any information, record or document which is held by any police officer charged with the investigation in question, unless the Prosecutor-General otherwise directs:

Provided that this subsection shall not be construed as denying an accused access to any information, record or document to which he or she may be entitled for the purposes of his or her trial.

[Section inserted by section 9 of Act 9 of 2006.]

118 Conditions of recognizance

(1) Where a judge or magistrate has granted an application for bail, a recognizance shall, before the accused is admitted to bail, be taken from him or from him and one or more sureties according to the conditions fixed by the judge or magistrate, as the case may be.

[Section amended by section 10 of Act 9 of 2006 and by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016.]

- (2) The conditions of the recognizance shall be that the prisoner—

(b) in the case of a prisoner who has been committed for trial or sentence, shall—

- (i) appear and undergo any further examination which the magistrate or the Prosecutor-General may consider desirable; and [Subparagraph amended by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016]

- (ii) answer to any indictment that may be presented or charge that may be made against him in any competent court for the offence with which he is charged at any time; and
- (iii) attend during the hearing of the case and to receive sentence; and
- (iv) accept service of any summons to undergo further examination and of any such indictment or charge, notice of trial and summons thereon and any other notice under this Act at some certain and convenient place within Zimbabwe chosen by him and stated therein;

(c) in the case of a prisoner whose case has been adjourned in terms of subsection (2) of section 54 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10], shall appear in any competent court at any time to receive sentence in that case and that he will accept service of any notice in respect thereof at some certain and convenient place within Zimbabwe chosen by him and stated therein;

- (d) in the case of a prisoner whose case has been adjourned in terms of subsection (1) of section 55 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10] or in respect of whom an order has been made in terms of subsection (5) of section three hundred and fifty-eight, shall appear in the High Court or a magistrates court, as the case may be, on the date and at the place to be notified to him by the registrar of the High Court or the clerk of the magistrates court, as the case may be, to show cause why the sentence postponed or suspended should not be imposed or brought into operation and that he will accept service of any notice in respect thereof at some certain and convenient place within Zimbabwe chosen by him and stated therein;
- (e) in the case of a prisoner, other than a prisoner mentioned in paragraph (c), admitted to bail when a criminal case before a magistrate is adjourned or postponed and the prisoner is remanded, shall appear at a time and place to be specified in writing and as often as may be necessary thereafter until final judgment in his case has been given to answer the charge of the offence alleged against him or the charge of any other offence which may appear to the Prosecutor-General or the local public prosecutor to have been committed by the accused.

(3) The judge or magistrate referred to in subsection (1) may require to be added to the recognizance any condition which he may think necessary or advisable in the interests of justice as to—

- (a) the surrender by the accused of his passport; or
- (b) the times and place at which, and the persons to whom, the accused shall personally present himself; or
- (c) the places where the accused is forbidden to go; or

119 Recognizance to be forfeited on failure of accused to appear at trial

(1) If upon the day appointed for the hearing of a case it appears by the return of the proper officer or by other sufficient proof that a copy of the indictment and notice of trial or, in case of a remittal to a magistrates court, the summons or charge or, where the case has been adjourned in terms of subsection (2) of section 54 or subsection (1) of section 55 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10] or an order has been made in terms of subsection (5) of section three hundred and fifty-eight, the notice prescribed in the rules of court has been duly served and the accused does not appear after he has been called by name three times in or near the court premises, the prosecutor may apply to the court for a warrant for the arrest of the accused and may also move the court that the accused and his sureties, if any, be called upon their recognizance and, in default of his appearance, that the same may be then and there declared forfeited.

(2) Any declaration of forfeiture in terms of subsection (1) shall have the effect of a judgment on the recognizance for the amounts therein named against the accused and his sureties respectively.

120 Excessive bail not to be required

(1) The amount of bail to be taken in any case shall be in the discretion of the judge or magistrate to whom the application to be admitted to bail is made:

Provided that no person shall be required to give excessive bail.

(2) Notwithstanding the proviso to subsection (1), if it is established that there is a possibility that the accused, if released on bail, will not stand his or her trial or appear to receive sentence, and that possibility, though short of a likelihood, is not too remote, a court shall not release the accused on bail unless it satisfies itself that the amount or the terms of the bail or both are reasonably sufficient to deter the accused from fleeing, given the factors referred to in section 117(3)(b).

121 Appeals against decisions regarding bail

- (1) Subject to this section, where a judge or magistrate has admitted or refused to admit a person to bail—
- (a) the Prosecutor-General or the public prosecutor, within forty-eight hours of the decision; or
- (b) the person concerned, at any time;

may appeal against the admission to or refusal to bail or the amount fixed as bail or any conditions imposed in connection with bail.

[Subsection substituted by section 29 of Act 2 of 2016]

- (2) An appeal in terms of subsection (1) against a decision of—
- (a) a judge of the High Court, shall be made to a judge of the Supreme Court;
- (b) a magistrate, shall be made to a judge of the High Court.

(3) Where a judge or magistrate has admitted a person to bail, and an appeal is noted by the Prosecutor-General or public prosecutor under subsection (1), the decision to admit to bail remains in force unless, on the application of the Prosecutor-General or public prosecutor, the judge or magistrate is satisfied that there is a reasonable possibility that the interests of justice may be defeated by the release of the accused on bail before the decision on appeal, in which event the judge or magistrate may suspend his or her decision to admit the person to bail and order the continued detention of the person for a specified period or until the appeal is determined, whichever is the shorter period.

[Subsection substituted by section 29 of Act 2 of 2016]

(4) An appeal in terms of subsection (1) by the person admitted to bail or refused admission to bail shall not suspend the decision appealed against.

(5) A judge who hears an appeal in terms of this section may make such order relating to bail or any condition in connection therewith as he considers should have been made by the judge or magistrate whose decision is the subject of the appeal.

(6) Subsections 117(2) to (6) shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in relation to any appeal in terms of this section.

(7) Any order made by a judge in terms of subsection (5) shall be deemed to be the order made in terms of the appropriate section of this Part by the judge or magistrate whose decision was the subject of the appeal.

(8) There shall be no appeal to a judge of the Supreme Court from a decision or order of a judge of the High Court in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (2), unless the decision or order relates to the admission or refusal of admission to bail of a person charged with any offence referred to in—

(a) paragraph 10 of the Third Schedule; or

(b) the Ninth Schedule in respect of which the Prosecutor-General has issued a certificate referred to in subsection (3b) of section thirty-two;

in which event subsections (3) to (7) shall apply to such appeal.

[Subsection substituted by section 6 of Act 14 of 2004.]

(9) This section shall apply in regard to a private prosecution as if references to the Prosecutor-General were references to the private party instituting the prosecution.

[Section as substituted by section 2 of Act 8 of 1997.]

[Section repealed by section 2 of Act 8 of 1997]

123 Power to admit to bail pending appeal or review

(1) Subject to this section, a person may be admitted to bail or have his conditions of bail altered—

(a) in the case of a person who has been convicted and sentenced or sentenced by the High Court and who applies for bail—

(i) pending the determination by the Supreme Court of his appeal; or

(ii) pending the determination of an application for leave to appeal or for an extension of time within which to apply for such leave;

by a judge of the Supreme Court or the High Court;

(b) in the case of a person who has been convicted and sentenced by a magistrates court and who applies for bail—

(i) where the record of a case is required or permitted, in terms of section 57 or 58 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10], to be transmitted for review, pending the determination of the review; or

(ii) pending the determination by the High Court of his appeal; or

(iii) pending the determination of an application for leave to appeal or for an extension of time within which to apply for such leave;

by a judge of the High Court or by any magistrate within whose area of jurisdiction he is in custody:

[Paragraph amended by section 10 of Act 9 of 1997.]

Provided that—

(i) the Prosecutor-General, in the case of any application to a judge in terms of this subsection, or the local public prosecutor, in the case of any application to a magistrate in terms of this subsection, shall be given reasonable notice of any such application;

(ii) where an application in terms of this subsection is determined by a judge or magistrate, a further application in terms of this subsection may only be made, whether to the judge or magistrate who has determined the previous application or any other judge or magistrate, if such application is based on facts which were not placed before the judge or magistrate who determined the previous application and which have arisen or been discovered after that determination.

(iii) a magistrate shall not, without the consent of the Prosecutor-General, admit a person to bail or alter a person's conditions of bail in respect of an offence specified in the Third Schedule.

(2) Sections 117 and 117A shall, with any changes that may be necessary, apply to this section.

[Subsection amended by section 12 of Act 9 of 2006.]

[Subsections 3 - 6 repealed by section 12 of Act 9 of 2006.]

- (7) If a judge or magistrate refuses an application for bail referred to in subsection (1), he may—
- (a) direct that the person be treated as an unconvicted prisoner pending the determination of his appeal, application or review, as the case may be; or
 - (b) postpone the payment of any fine.
- (8) The time during which a person, pending the determination of an appeal, application or review, is—
- (a) admitted to bail; or
 - (b) subject to any direction which the Supreme Court or High Court may give to the contrary on any appeal or review, treated as an unconvicted prisoner in terms of this section; shall not count as part of any term of imprisonment under his sentence.

- (9) The term of imprisonment of a person shall be resumed or begin to run, as the case requires—
- (a) if such person is treated as an unconvicted prisoner in terms of this section, subject to any directions which the Supreme Court or the High Court may give to the contrary, as from the day on which the appeal, application or review is determined; or
 - (b) if such person is admitted to bail in terms of this section, as from the day on which he is received into prison under his sentence.

(10) A recognizance shall be taken on the admission of a person to bail either from that person alone or from him and one or more sureties, in the discretion of the judge or magistrate according to the nature and circumstances of the case, and it shall be a condition of such recognizance that the person shall, upon service on or for him at some place to be mentioned in the recognizance of a notice signed by the registrar of the High Court or, where the conviction or sentence appealed against took place in a magistrates court, by the clerk of that court informing that person of the decision of the High Court or the Supreme Court, as the case may be—

- (a) pay the fine, if any, due by him within such time and to such person as shall be specified in the notice; or
- (b) surrender himself within such time and to such person as shall be specified in the notice in order to undergo any other punishment which he is liable to undergo, and the judge or magistrate may add any or all of the conditions mentioned in subsection (3) of section one hundred and eighteen which he may think necessary or advisable to impose.

(11) The provisions of section three hundred and eighty-two shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the service of a notice referred to in subsection (10).

(12) In granting bail in terms of subsection (1) the judge or magistrate may take bail also for the cost and charge of serving the notice referred to in subsection (10), which cost and charge shall be the same as that of serving a summons in a civil case in a magistrates court against the same person at the same place.

(13) When a person has been admitted to bail in terms of subsection (1), a judge, in the case where the conviction or sentence took place in the High Court, or a magistrate in any other case, may, upon the application of the Prosecutor-General or local public prosecutor, as the case may be, and upon information being made in writing and upon oath that default has been made in any condition of the recognizance taken from such person—

- (a) issue a warrant for the arrest of such person; and
- (b) issue an order calling upon him and his sureties, if any, to appear on a day and at a place specified in the order to show cause why the recognizance should not be declared forfeited; and
- (c) if cause to the satisfaction of the judge or magistrate, as the case may be, is not shown against any such declaration, declare the recognizance to be forfeited, and such declaration of forfeiture shall have the effect of a judgment on the recognizance for the amounts therein named against such person and his sureties, respectively.

125 Insufficiency of sureties

If, through mistake, fraud or otherwise, insufficient sureties have been accepted or if they afterwards become insufficient, the judge or magistrate granting the bail may issue a warrant of arrest directing that the accused be brought before him, and may order him to find sufficient sureties, and on his failing so to do may commit him to prison.

126 Alteration of recognizances or committal of person on bail to prison

(1) Any judge or magistrate who has granted bail to a person in terms of this Part may, if he is of the opinion that it is necessary or advisable in the interests of justice that the conditions of a recognizance entered into by that person should be altered or added to or that that person should be committed to prison, order that the said conditions be altered or added to or commit the person to prison, as the case may be:

Provided that—

- (i) if the judge or magistrate who granted bail is not available, any other judge or magistrate, as the case may be, may act in terms of this subsection;

(ii) a judge or magistrate shall not act in terms of this subsection unless facts which were not before the judge or magistrate who granted bail are brought to his attention.

(2) In order to secure the presence before him of a person for the purpose of acting in terms of subsection (1), a judge or magistrate may issue a warrant for the arrest of the person and thereafter subsection (1) shall apply.

(3) The provisions of section thirty-five shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in respect of a warrant issued in terms of subsection (2).

127 Person on bail may be arrested without warrant if about to abscond or interfere with witness

(1) If a peace officer believes on reasonable grounds that a person to whom bail has been granted in terms of this Part is about to abscond for the purpose of evading justice or to interfere with the evidence against him, he may arrest the person without warrant and shall as soon as possible and in any event within forty-eight hours of the arrest, take him before a magistrate who may, upon being satisfied that the ends of justice would otherwise be defeated, commit the person to prison.

(2) A person arrested in terms of subsection (1) shall be informed at the time of the arrest by the person arresting him of the cause of the arrest.

[Section amended by section 30 of Act 2 of 2016]

128 Release of sureties and death of surety

(1) All or any sureties for the attendance and appearance of an accused person released on bail may at any time apply to the judge or magistrate before whom the recognizance was entered into to discharge the recognizance, either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants.

(2) On an application in terms of subsection (1), the judge or magistrate shall issue a warrant of arrest directing that the accused be brought before him.

(3) On the appearance of the accused pursuant to the warrant or on his voluntary surrender, the judge or magistrate shall direct the recognizances to be discharged, either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants, and shall call upon the accused to find other sufficient sureties, and if he fails to do so may commit him to prison.

(4) When a surety to a recognizance dies before any forfeiture has been incurred, his estate shall be discharged from all liability in respect of the recognizance, but the accused may be required to find a new surety.

129 Rendering in court

The sureties may bring the accused into the court at which he is bound to appear during any sitting thereof, and then, by leave of the court, render him in discharge of such recognizance at any time before sentence, and the accused shall be committed to a prison there to remain until discharged by due course of law but such court may admit the accused person to bail for his appearance at any time it thinks fit.

130 Sureties not discharged until sentence or discharge of accused

The pleading or conviction of any accused person released on bail in terms of this Part shall not discharge the recognizance, but the same shall be effectual for his appearance during the trial and until sentence is passed or he is discharged:

Provided that the court may commit the accused to a prison upon his trial or may require new or additional sureties for his appearance for trial or sentence, as the case may be, notwithstanding such recognizance, and such commitment shall be a discharge of the sureties.

131 Deposit instead of recognizance

(1) When any person is required by any judge or magistrate to enter into recognizances, with or without sureties, under this Act, such judge or magistrate may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, instead of causing such recognizances to be entered into, permit him or some person on his behalf to deposit a sum of money or Government securities or other property of any description whatsoever acceptable to the Prosecutor-General to such amount as the judge or magistrate may fix.

(2) Conditions in writing shall be made in respect of any deposit in terms of subsection (1) of money, securities or property of the same nature as the conditions prescribed by this Part in respect of recognizances, and all the provisions of this Part prescribing the circumstances in which recognizances taken from the accused or an appellant, as the case may be, alone shall be forfeited, his arrest if about to abscond and remission of forfeited bail shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in respect of any such deposit of money, securities or property.

132 Admission to bail by police

(1) Except where the charge against an accused person is one of the offences specified in the Fifth Schedule, any police officer of or above the rank of assistant inspector, or a police officer of whatever rank in charge of a police station, may, at a police station and at such times as no judicial officer is available, admit to bail an accused person who makes or on whose behalf is made a deposit of such sum of money as such police officer may in the particular circumstances fix.

(2) The provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one as to conditions, forfeiture and remission of forfeited bail shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in respect of any deposit of money made under subsection (1).

133 Provision in case of default in conditions of recognizance

If it appears to the judge or magistrate who admitted the accused to bail that default has been made in any condition of the recognizance or if it appears to a judge or magistrate of the court before which an accused person has to appear in terms of any recognizance that default has been made in any condition of such recognizance, such judge or magistrate may—

- (a) issue an order declaring the recognizance forfeited and such order shall have the effect of a judgment on the recognizance for the amounts therein named against the person admitted to bail and his sureties respectively;
- (b) issue a warrant for the arrest of the person admitted to bail and afterwards, upon being satisfied that the ends of justice would otherwise be defeated, commit him when so arrested to prison until his trial.

134 Remission of bail

The Prosecutor-General may, in his discretion, remit the whole or any portion of any amount forfeited under section ninety-seven or this Part and may, where a portion of such amount has been remitted, enforce payment in part only.

135 Release of juvenile offenders without bail

(1) When a person under the age of eighteen years is accused of any offence other than treason, murder or rape, any judge, magistrate or police officer who has power under this Part to admit the said person to bail may, instead of admitting him to bail or instead of detaining him—

- (a) release him without bail and warn him to appear before a court or magistrate at a time and on a date then fixed by the judge, magistrate or police officer; or
- (b) release him without bail to the care of the person in whose custody he is and warn that person to bring him or cause him to be brought before a court or magistrate at a time and on a date then fixed as aforesaid; or
- (c) place him in a place of safety as defined in section 2 of the Children's Act [Chapter 5:06] pending his appearance before a court or magistrate or until he is otherwise dealt with according to law.

[Paragraph amended by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016]

(2) Any person who, having been warned in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (1), fails without reasonable excuse, the burden of proof of which shall rest upon him, to act in accordance with that warning, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level three or, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

[Subsection amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

PART X

INDICTMENTS, SUMMONSES AND CHARGES

A. Indictments in High Court

136 Charge in High Court to be laid in indictment

(1) When a person charged with an offence has been committed for trial or sentence and it is intended to prosecute him before the High Court, the charge shall be in writing in a document called an indictment.

(2) Where the prosecution is at the public instance, the indictment shall be in the name of the Prosecutor-General and shall be signed by the Prosecutor-General or by a member of the National Prosecuting Authority authorised by him or her.

[Subsection substituted by section 31 of Act 2 of 2016]

(3) When the prosecution is a private one, the indictment shall be in the name of the party at whose instance it is preferred (who must be described therein with certainty and precision) and must be signed by such private party or by his legal representative.

(4) It shall not be competent for two or more persons to prosecute in the same indictment, except in a case where two or more persons have been injured by the same offence.

(5) The service upon an accused person of any indictment, together with any notice of trial thereof, shall be made by the person and in the manner provided by rules of court.

(6) When a person under the age of eighteen years is served with an indictment and notice of trial as aforesaid, the provisions of section 113A shall apply, mutatis mutandis:

Provided that where any reference is made to a direction by a magistrate, that shall be read as a reference to a direction by a judge.

[Subsection amended by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016]

137 When case is pending

As soon as the indictment in any criminal case brought in the High Court has been duly lodged with the registrar of that court, such case shall be deemed to be pending in that court.

138 High Court may try case wherever offence committed

Any person charged with committing an offence at any place may be tried by the High Court, wherever sitting.

B. Summonses and charges in magistrates courts

139 Lodging of charges in magistrates court

Where a public prosecutor has, by virtue of his office, determined to prosecute any person in a magistrates court for any offence within the jurisdiction of that court, he shall forthwith lodge with the clerk of the court a statement in writing of the charge against that person, describing him by his forename, surname, place of abode and occupation and setting forth shortly and distinctly the nature of the offence and the time and place at which it was committed.

140 Summons in magistrates court

(1) The clerk of the magistrates court shall, upon or after the lodging of any charge, at the request of the prosecutor, issue and deliver to the messenger of the court a summons to the person charged to appear to answer the charge, together with so many copies of the said summons as there are persons to be summoned.

(2) Except where otherwise specially provided by any enactment, the service upon an accused person of any summons or other process in a criminal case in a magistrates court shall be made by the prescribed officer, either by delivering it to the accused personally or, if he cannot conveniently be found, by leaving it for him at his place of business or most usual or last known place of abode with some inmate thereof.

(3) The service of a summons may be proved by the testimony on oath of the person effecting the service or by his affidavit or by due return of service under his hand.

(4) If, upon the day appointed for the appearance of any person to answer any charge, he fails to appear and the court is satisfied upon the return of the person required to serve the summons that he was duly summoned, the court may, on the request of the prosecutor, issue a warrant for the apprehension of the said person, and may also impose on him for his default a fine not exceeding level three or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

[Subsection amended by section 4 of Act 8 of 1997 and section 4 of Act 22 of 2001.]

(5) The court may, upon cause shown, remit any fine or imprisonment imposed under subsection (4).

(6) When a person under the age of eighteen years is summoned as aforesaid, the provisions of section 113A shall apply, mutatis mutandis.

[Subsection amended by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016]

141 Written notice to secure attendance of accused in magistrates court

(1) If a person is alleged to have committed an offence and a peace officer, on reasonable grounds, believes that a magistrates court, on convicting such accused of that offence, will impose a fine not exceeding level three, the peace officer may, whether or not the accused is in custody, hand to the accused a written notice in the form prescribed which shall—

(a) give such particulars as are necessary for giving reasonable information of the allegation:

Provided that it shall not be necessary to cite the provision of the enactment under which he is charged; and

(b) specify the full name and address of the accused; and

(c) call upon the accused to appear at a place and on a date and at a time specified in the written notice to answer a charge of having committed the offence in question; and

(d) contain an endorsement to the effect that the accused may, in terms of section three hundred and fifty-six, on or before such date as may be specified, admit his guilt in respect of the offence in question and pay a fine fixed in respect thereof without appearing in court; and

(e) contain a certificate under the hand of the peace officer that he has handed the original of such written notice to the accused and that he has explained to the accused the import thereof.

[Subsection amended by section 4 of Act 22 of 2001.]

(2) If the accused is in custody, the effect of a written notice handed to him in terms of subsection (1) shall be that he be released forthwith from custody.

(3) A peace officer who hands a person a written notice in terms of subsection (1) shall forthwith forward a duplicate original of the written notice to the clerk of the court at which the accused is, in terms of the notice, called upon to appear.

(4) The provisions of subsections (4) and (5) of section one hundred and forty shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in regard to a written notice handed in terms of subsection (1) to an accused who has not, on or before the date specified in paragraph (d) of subsection (1), admitted his guilt in respect of the offence in question and paid the fine fixed in respect thereof in terms of section three hundred and fifty-six as if the written notice were a summons duly served on the person concerned.

(5) The production to the court by the prosecutor of the duplicate original referred to in subsection (3) shall be prima facie proof—

- (a) that the original thereof was handed to the accused; and
- (b) that the accused has not, on or before the date specified in paragraph (d) of subsection (1), admitted his guilt in respect of the offence in question and paid the fine fixed in respect thereof in terms of section three hundred and fifty-six.

142 Warning to appear in magistrates court

(1) Notwithstanding anything in section one hundred and forty, it shall be competent for a magistrates court to obtain the presence of any person to be charged with any offence by means of a warning to such person.

(2) In all summary trials in a magistrates court without summons, the charge shall be entered upon a form called the "Charge Sheet", containing the name of every accused person, with the name of the offence with which he is charged and the necessary particulars thereof concisely stated.

(3) At the trial the charge drawn in terms of subsection (2) shall be read out to the person charged, who shall be called upon to plead thereto, and his plea shall be recorded thereon.

(4) The accused or his legal representative shall be entitled at all reasonable times to inspect the charge as stated on the charge sheet.

(5) When a person under the age of eighteen years has been arrested by a peace officer for the purpose of being brought before a court or has been warned to appear before a court on a charge of having committed an offence, the officer who arrested or warned the said person shall, unless otherwise directed by a magistrate, warn the parent or guardian of such person, or cause him to be warned, if he can be found within the area of jurisdiction of the court, to attend the court on the day on which and at the time at which such person is to be brought or was warned to appear before such court and to remain in attendance during the proceedings against such person in that court, and thereupon section 113A shall apply, mutatis mutandis:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply in respect of a person under the age of eighteen years who is married or who appears to the officer who arrests or warns that person to be tacitly emancipated.

[Subsection amended by section 49 of Act 2 of 2016]

143 Charges in remitted cases

(1) When any case has been remitted by the Prosecutor-General to be dealt with by a magistrates court, the court shall, with all convenient dispatch, cause the accused to be brought before it.

(2) If the accused has been released on bail, the court shall cause a notice to be served on him stating that the case has been remitted to it to be dealt with and requiring him to appear on the day appointed for the trial.

(3) A notice in terms of subsection (2) shall be served in the same manner as a criminal summons and, if the accused does not appear as required in the notice, his bail may be estreated and he may be arrested and brought before the court as in the case of a person who has not appeared upon a criminal summons.

C. General for all courts

144 Joinder of counts

(1) Any number of counts, for any offences whatever, may be joined in the same indictment, summons or charge and where separate indictments, summonses or charges have been presented against an accused person, the court may, with the consent of the prosecutor and the accused, treat the separate indictments, summonses or charges as being a number of counts joined in the same indictment, summons or charge.

[Subsection amended, by repeal of proviso, by section 5 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(2) When there are more counts than one in an indictment, summons or charge, they shall be numbered consecutively, and each count may be treated as a separate indictment, summons or charge.

(3) If the court thinks it conducive to the ends of justice to do so, it may direct that the accused shall be tried upon any one or more of such counts separately and such direction may be made either before or in the course of the trial.

(4) The counts in the indictment which are not then tried shall be proceeded upon in all respects as if they had been contained in a separate indictment.

(5) If it is alleged that on several different occasions on any one day or during any period any person has committed—

- (a) an offence against or in respect of any one person; or
- (b) an offence which is not an offence against or in respect of any person;

the indictment, summons or charge may charge in one count that the accused committed the offence on several different occasions on that day or during that period.

145 Where doubtful what offence has been committed

If, by reason of the nature of an act or series of acts, or of any uncertainty as to the facts which can be proved, or if for any other reason whatever it is doubtful which of several offences is constituted by the facts which can be proved, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of those offences, and any number of such charges may be tried at one time, or the accused may be charged in the alternative with having committed some or one of those offences.

146 Essentials of indictment, summons or charge

(1) Subject to this Act and except as otherwise provided in any other enactment, each count of the indictment, summons or charge shall set forth the offence with which the accused is charged in such manner, and with such particulars as to the alleged time and place of committing the offence and the person, if any, against whom and the property, if any, in respect of which the offence is alleged to have been committed, as may be reasonably sufficient to inform the accused of the nature of the charge.

(2) Subject to this Act and except as otherwise provided in any other enactment, the following provisions shall apply to criminal proceedings in any court, that is to say—

- (a) the description of any offence in the words of any enactment creating the offence, or in similar words, shall be sufficient; and
- (b) any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany in the same section the description of the offence in the enactment creating the offence, may be proved by the accused, but need not be specified or negatived in the indictment, summons or charge, and, if so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the prosecution.

(3) Where any of the particulars referred to in this section are unknown to the prosecutor, it shall be sufficient to state that fact in the indictment, summons or charge.

(4) Where a person is charged with a crime listed in the first column of the Second Schedule to the Criminal Law Code, it shall be sufficient to charge him or her with that crime by its name only.

[Subsection inserted by section 282 of Act 23 of 2004]

(5) No indictment, summons or charge alleging the commission of a crime mentioned in subsection (4) shall be held to be defective on account of a failure to mention the section of the Criminal Law Code under which the crime is set forth.

[Subsection inserted by section 282 of Act 23 of 2004]

147 Sufficient to allege dates between which thefts took place

It shall be lawful in any indictment, summons or charge in respect of theft to allege that the property stated to have been stolen was taken at several different times between any two certain days named in the indictment, summons or charge, and upon such an indictment, summons or charge, proof may be given of the theft of such property upon any day or days between the two certain days aforesaid.

148 Indictment may charge general deficiency

In an indictment, summons or charge in respect of the theft of money, or in respect of the theft of any property by a person entrusted with the custody or care of such property, the accused may be charged and proceeded against for the amount of a general deficiency, notwithstanding that such general deficiency is made up of any number of specific sums of money or of any number of specific articles or of a sum of money representing the value of specific articles, the taking of which extended over any space of time.

149 Not necessary to specify particular coin or bank-note stolen

In any indictment, summons or charge in which it is necessary to make averment as to any money or any bank-note, it shall be sufficient to describe such money or bank-note simply as money, without specifying any particular coin or bank-note, and such averment, so far as regards the description of the property, shall be sustained by proof of any amount of coin or of any bank-note, although the particular species of coin of which such amount was composed or the particular nature of the bank-note is not proved, and in cases of money or bank-notes obtained by false pretences or by any other unlawful act, by proof that the offender obtained any coin or any bank-note or any portion of the value thereof, although such coin or bank-note may have been delivered to him in order that some part of the value thereof should be returned to the party delivering the same or to any other person, and such part has been returned accordingly.

150 Indictments for giving false evidence; and making of conflicting statements on oath in judicial proceedings

(1) In an indictment, summons or charge in respect of an offence which relates to taking or administering an oath or affirmation, or to giving false testimony, or to making a false statement on solemn declaration or otherwise, or to procuring the giving of false testimony or the making of a false statement, it shall not be necessary to set forth the words of the oath or affirmation or testimony or statement, but it shall be sufficient to set forth the purport thereof or so much of the purport thereof as is material, nor shall it be necessary to allege in any such indictment, summons or charge or to prove at the trial that the false testimony or statement was material to any issue to be tried in the proceedings in connection wherewith it was given or made, or that it was to the prejudice of any person:

Provided that it shall be a sufficient defence on such trial to prove that the false testimony or statement was not material to any such issue and was not to the prejudice of any person.

(2) In an indictment, summons or charge which relates to giving false testimony or procuring or attempting to procure the giving of false testimony, it shall not be necessary to allege the jurisdiction or state the nature of the

- (a) that the accused when he made each statement believed it to be true; or
- (b) that neither statement was material to any such issue as aforesaid; or
- (c) that one statement was true and that the other statement, though false, was not material to any such issue as aforesaid.

PART XI

PROCEDURE BEFORE COMMENCEMENT OF TRIAL

A. In High Court

160 Bringing of accused persons to trial before High Court

(1) Except as is otherwise expressly provided in this Act as to the postponement or adjournment of a trial, every person committed for trial or sentence whom the Prosecutor-General has decided to prosecute before the High Court shall be brought to trial on such date as may be determined by the Prosecutor-General:

Provided that the High Court may, on application by the accused and on good cause shown by him, order that the trial shall take place on an earlier date than that determined by the Prosecutor-General.

(2) If a person referred to in subsection (1) is not brought to trial after the expiry of six months from the date of his committal for trial, his case shall be dismissed:

Provided that any period during which such person is, through circumstances beyond the control of the Prosecutor-General, not available to stand trial shall not be included as part of the period of six months referred to in this subsection.

[Subsection repealed by section 13 of Act 9 of 2006.]

161 Change of place of trial

(1) When an indictment has been presented against an accused person in the High Court, any judge may, upon application by or on behalf of the Prosecutor-General or by or on behalf of the accused, order that the trial shall be held at some place other than that specified in the notice of trial and at a time to be named in the order.

(2) When any order is made under subsection (1), the consequences shall be the same in all respects and with regard to all persons as if the Prosecutor-General had decided to prosecute the accused at the place named in the order and at the time specified therein, and if he has been admitted to bail—

(a) the recognizances of the bail shall be deemed to extend to that time and place accordingly; and

(b) the recognizances of any persons who are bound to attend as witnesses shall be deemed to extend to the same time and place.

(3) Notice of the time and place named and specified in an order in terms of subsection (1) shall be given to the persons bound by the recognizances, otherwise their recognizances shall not be forfeited.

162 When removed prisoner to be tried

Where a case has, in terms of section one hundred and sixty-one, been removed for trial elsewhere and the accused is in custody, the judge granting the order of removal shall issue a warrant directing his transmission forthwith to the prison of the area to which the case has been removed and the accused shall be tried as soon as reasonably possible on a date to be determined by the Prosecutor-General:

Provided that the accused shall not be tried less than ten days after his arrival at the prison except with his consent.

B. In magistrates court

163 Accused in magistrates court to be brought for trial at once

Any person to be prosecuted on a criminal charge in a magistrates court shall be brought for trial at the next possible court day.

163A Accused in magistrates court to be informed of section 191 rights

(1) At the commencement of any trial in a magistrates court, before the accused is called upon to plead to the summons or charge, the accused shall be informed by the magistrate of his or her right in terms of section 191 to legal or other representation in terms of that section.

(2) The magistrate shall record the fact that the accused has been given the information referred to in subsection (1), and the accused's response to it.

[Section inserted by section 34 of Act 2 of 2016]

164 Persons brought before wrong court

(1) If on the trial of a person charged with any offence before any magistrates court it appears that he is not properly triable before the court, he is not by reason thereof entitled to be acquitted, but the court may at the request of the accused direct that he be tried before some proper court, and may remand him for trial accordingly.

(2) If he does not make a request in terms of subsection (1), the trial shall proceed and the verdict and judgment shall have the same effect in all respects as if the court had originally had jurisdiction to try the accused.

(3) This section shall not affect the right of the accused to plead to the jurisdiction of a court.

C. General for all courts

165 Trial of pending case may be postponed

Subject to subsection (2) of section one hundred and sixty, any court before which a criminal trial is pending may, if it is necessary or expedient, postpone the trial until such time and to such place and upon such terms as to such court may seem proper, and further postponements may, if necessary or expedient, be made from time to time:

Provided that where a trial is pending before a magistrates court such trial shall not, unless the accused consents thereto, be postponed for a period exceeding fourteen days at any one time.

166 Adjournment of trial

(1) A trial may, if it is necessary or expedient, be adjourned at any period of the trial, whether evidence has or has not been given.

(2) A trial before a magistrates court shall not, unless the accused consents thereto, be adjourned for a period exceeding fourteen days but such adjournment may, if necessary, take place more than once upon sufficient cause appearing to the magistrate.

167 Accused may be admitted to bail on postponement or adjournment of trial

(1) When a trial is postponed or adjourned in terms of section one hundred and sixty-five or one hundred and sixty-six, the court may direct that the accused be detained until liberated in accordance with law or release him on bail or extend his bail if he has already been released on bail, and may extend the recognizances of the witnesses.

(2) When a trial is postponed or adjourned in terms of section one hundred and sixty-five or one hundred and sixty-six and the accused is not in custody and has not been admitted to bail, he shall be deemed to have been served with a summons to appear at the time and place to which the trial was postponed or adjourned.

167A Unreasonable delay in bringing accused to trial

(1) A court before which criminal proceedings are pending shall investigate any delay in the completion of the proceedings which appears to the court to be unreasonable and which could cause substantial prejudice to the prosecution, to the accused or his or her legal representative, to a witness or other person concerned in the proceedings, or to the public interest.

(2) In considering whether any delay is unreasonable for the purposes of subsection (1), the court shall consider all the circumstances of the case and in particular the following—

- (a) the extent of the delay;
- (b) the reasons advanced for the delay;
- (c) whether any person can be blamed for the delay;
- (d) whether the accused has raised such objections to the delay as he or she might reasonably have been expected to have raised;
- (e) the seriousness, extent or complexity of the charge or charges;
- (f) any actual or potential prejudice which the delay may have caused to the State, to the accused or his or her legal representative or to any other person concerned in the proceedings;
- (g) the effect of the delay on the administration of justice;
- (h) the adverse effect on the interests of the public or the victims in the event of the prosecution being stopped or discontinued.

(3) If after an investigation in terms of subsection (1) the court finds that—

- (a) the completion of the proceedings is being unduly delayed; or
- (b) there has been an unreasonable delay in bringing the accused to trial or in completing the trial;

the court may issue such order as it considers appropriate in order to eliminate the delay and any prejudice arising from it or to prevent further delay or prejudice, including an order—

- (i) refusing further postponement of the proceedings;
- (ii) granting a postponement subject to such conditions as the court may determine;
- (iii) that the prosecution of the accused for the offence be permanently stayed;
- (iv) that the matter be referred to the appropriate authority for an administrative investigation and possible disciplinary action against any person responsible for the delay.

(4) The Prosecutor-General may appeal against an order referred to in subsection (3) (iii) as if it were an acquittal of the accused.

[Section inserted by section 35 of Act 2 of 2016]

168 Accused to plead to indictment, summons or charge

At the time appointed for the trial or sentence of the accused upon any indictment, summons or charge, he shall appear, and shall be informed in open court of the offence with which he is charged as set forth in the indictment, summons or charge, and shall, subject to section three hundred and fifty-six, be required to plead instantly thereto except where, there being an indictment or summons and the accused having objected so to plead, the court finds that he has not been duly served with a copy thereof.

169 Termination of bail on plea to indictment in High Court

If the accused is indicted in the High Court after having been admitted to bail, his plea to the indictment shall, unless the court otherwise directs, have the effect of terminating his bail, and he shall thereupon be detained in custody until the conclusion of the trial in the same manner in every respect as if he had not been admitted to bail.

170 Objections to indictment, how and when to be made

(1) Any objection to an indictment for any formal defect apparent on the face thereof shall be taken by exception or by application to quash such indictment before the accused has pleaded, but not afterwards.

(2) Any objection to a summons or charge for any formal defect apparent on the face thereof which is to be tried by a magistrates court shall be taken by exception before the accused has pleaded, but not afterwards.

(3) Any court before which any objection is taken in terms of subsection (1) or (2) may, if it is thought necessary and the accused is not prejudiced as to his defence, cause the indictment, summons or charge to be forthwith amended in the requisite particular by some officer of the court or other person, and thereupon the trial shall proceed as if no such defect had appeared.

171 Exceptions

(1) When the accused excepts only and does not plead any plea, the court shall proceed to hear and determine the matter forthwith and if the exception is overruled, he shall be called upon to plead to the indictment, summons or charge.

(2) When the accused pleads and excepts together, it shall be in the discretion of the court whether the plea or exception shall be first disposed of.

172 Certain omissions or imperfections not to invalidate indictment

No indictment, summons or charge in respect of any offence shall be held insufficient—

- (a) for want of the averment of any matter unnecessary to be proved; or
- (b) because any person mentioned therein is designated by a name of office or other descriptive appellation instead of by his proper name; or
- (c) because of an omission to state the time at which the offence was committed in any case where time is not of the essence of the offence; or
- (d) because the offence is stated to have been committed on a day subsequent to the lodging of the indictment or the service of the summons or charge or, subject to section one hundred and seventy-four, on an impossible day or on a day that never happened; or
- (e) for want of or imperfection in the addition of any accused or any other person; or
- (f) for want of the statement of the value or price of any matter or thing or the amount of damage, injury or spoil in any case where the value or price or the amount of damage, injury or spoil is not of the essence of the offence.

173 Averments as to time of commission of offence

If any particular day or period is alleged in any indictment, summons or charge as the day on or period during which any act or offence was committed—

- (a) proof that such act or offence was committed on any other day or time not more than three months before or after the day or period stated therein shall be taken to support such allegation if time is not of the essence of the offence;
- (b) proof may be given that the act or offence in question was committed on a day or time more than three months before or after the day or period stated in the indictment, summons or charge, unless it is made to appear to the court before which the trial is being held that the accused is likely to be prejudiced thereby in his defence upon the merits, and if the court considers that the accused is likely to be thereby prejudiced in his defence upon the merits, it shall reject such proof and the accused shall be in the same position as if he had not pleaded.

174 Proceedings where indictment alleges offence committed on impossible day

If in any case no day is stated in the indictment, summons or charge or an impossible day or a day that never happened is stated, the accused may, at any time before pleading, apply to the High Court or any judge, or to the court in which he is indicted or charged, and such court or judge shall, upon being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that the accused is likely to be prejudiced in his defence upon the merits unless some day or time were stated, make such order in that behalf as in the circumstances of the particular case seems just.

175 Proceedings if defence is an alibi

If in any case the defence of the accused is that commonly called an alibi, and the court before which the trial is held considers that the accused might be prejudiced in making such defence if proof were admitted that the act or offence in question was committed on some day or time other than the day or time stated in the indictment, summons or charge, then, although the day or time proposed to be proved is within a period of three months before or after the day stated in the indictment, summons or charge, the court shall reject such proof, and thereupon the same consequences shall take place as in paragraph (b) of section one hundred and seventy-three mentioned, anything in that section to the contrary notwithstanding.

176 Indictments relating to blasphemous, seditious, obscene or defamatory matters

No count for publishing a blasphemous, seditious, obscene or defamatory matter, or for selling or exhibiting any obscene book, pamphlet, newspaper or other printed or written matter, shall be open to objection or deemed insufficient on the ground that it does not set out the words thereof:

Provided that the court may order that particulars shall be furnished by the prosecutor stating what passages in such book, pamphlet, newspaper, printing or writing are relied on in support of the charge.

177 Court may order delivery of particulars

(1) The court may either before or at the trial, in any case if it thinks fit, direct that particulars be delivered to the accused of any matter alleged in the indictment, summons or charge, and may, if necessary, adjourn the trial for the purpose of the delivery of such particulars.

(2) Such particulars shall be delivered to the accused or to his legal representative without charge, and shall be entered in the record, and the trial shall proceed in all respects as if the indictment, summons or charge had been amended in conformity with such particulars.

[Subsection repealed by section 13 of Act 9 of 2006.]

178 Application to quash indictment

(1) The accused may, before pleading, apply to the court to quash the indictment, summons or charge on the ground that it is calculated to prejudice or embarrass him in his defence.

(2) Upon an application in terms of subsection (1), the court may quash the indictment, summons or charge or may order it to be amended in such manner as the court thinks just or may refuse to make any order on the application.

(3) If the accused alleges that he is wrongly named in the indictment, summons or charge, the court may, on being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise of the error, order it to be amended.

179 Notice of application to quash indictment and of certain pleas to be given

When the accused intends to apply to have an indictment, summons or charge quashed under section one hundred and seventy-eight or to except or to plead any of the pleas mentioned in section one hundred and eighty, except the plea of guilty or not guilty, he shall give reasonable notice, regard being had to the circumstances of each particular case, to the Prosecutor-General or his representative if the trial is before the High Court, or to the public prosecutor if the trial is before a magistrates court, or when the prosecution is a private one to the private prosecutor, stating the grounds upon which he seeks to have the indictment, summons or charge quashed or upon which he bases his exception or plea:

Provided that—

- (i) the Prosecutor-General or prosecutor, as the case may be, may waive such notice;
- (ii) on good cause shown, the court may dispense with such notice or adjourn the trial to enable such notice to be given.

180 Pleas

(1) If the accused does not object that he has not been duly served with a copy of the indictment, summons or charge or apply to have it quashed under section one hundred and seventy-eight, he shall either plead to it or except to it on the ground that it does not disclose any offence cognizable by the court.

(2) If the accused pleads, he may plead—

- (a) that he is guilty of the offence charged or, with the concurrence of the prosecutor, of any other offence of which he might be convicted on the indictment, summons or charge; or
- (b) that he is not guilty; or
- (c) that he has already been convicted of the offence with which he is charged; or
- (d) that he has already been acquitted of the offence with which he is charged; or
- (e) that he has received the pardon of the President for the offence charged or is immune from liability to prosecution for the offence, whether in terms of section 267(2) or any other law; or

[Paragraph amended by section 36 of Act 2 of 2016]

- (f) that the court has no jurisdiction to try him for the offence; or
- (g) that the prosecutor has no title to prosecute; or
- (h) that he or she is entitled to an order under section 167A permanently staying the prosecution on the ground that there has been an unreasonable delay in bringing him or her to trial for the offence; or

[Paragraph inserted by section 36 of Act 2 of 2016]

- (i) that a court has given an order under section 167A permanently staying the prosecution of the offence.

[Paragraph inserted by section 36 of Act 2 of 2016]

(3) Two or more pleas may be pleaded together, except that the plea of guilty cannot be pleaded with any other plea to the same charge.

(4) The accused may plead and except together.

(5) Subject to section one hundred and eighty-eight, the accused may, together with his plea, offer an explanation of his attitude in relation to the charge or statement indicating the basis of his defence and such explanation or statement shall be recorded and shall form part of the record of the case.

(6) Any person who has been called upon to plead to any indictment, summons or charge shall, except as is otherwise provided in this Act or in any other enactment, be entitled to demand that he be either acquitted or found guilty by the judge or magistrate before whom he pleaded:

Provided that—

- (i) where a plea of not guilty has been recorded, whether in terms of section two hundred and seventy-two or otherwise, the trial may be continued before another judge or magistrate if no evidence has been adduced;
- (ii) where a plea of guilty has been recorded, the trial may be continued before another judge or magistrate if no evidence has been adduced or no explanation has been given or inquiry made in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section two hundred and seventy-one.

181 Person committed or remitted for sentence

(1) When a person has, in terms of subsection (4) of section ninety, been committed to the High Court by a magistrate for sentence, or his case has been remitted by the Prosecutor-General to a magistrates court for sentence, he shall be called upon to plead to the indictment, summons or charge in the same manner as if he had, in the case of such committal, been committed for trial, and in the case of such remittal, as if he were being tried summarily, and may plead either that he is guilty of the offence charged or, with the concurrence of the prosecutor, of any other offence of which he might be convicted on the indictment, summons or charge.

(2) If the accused pleads that he is not guilty, the court shall, upon being satisfied that he duly admitted before the magistrate that he was guilty of the offence charged and was so guilty, direct a plea of guilty to be entered or enter such plea, notwithstanding his plea of not guilty, and a plea so entered shall have the same effect as if it had been actually pleaded.

(3) If the court is not so satisfied, or if notwithstanding that the accused pleads guilty it appears upon an examination of the depositions of the witnesses that he has not in fact committed the offence charged or any other offence of which he might be convicted on the indictment, summons or charge, the plea of not guilty shall be entered and the trial shall proceed as in other cases when that plea is entered.

182 Accused refusing to plead

If the accused, when called upon to plead to an indictment, summons or charge, will not plead or answer directly thereto, the court may, if it thinks fit, order a plea of not guilty to be entered on behalf of the accused, and a plea so entered shall have the same effect as if it had been actually pleaded.

183 Truth of defamatory matter to be specially pleaded and to be proved by accused

(1) A person charged with the unlawful publication of defamatory matter who sets up as a defence that the defamatory matter is true, and that it was for the public benefit that the publication should be made, shall plead that matter specially and may plead it with any other plea, except the plea of guilty.

(2) Notice of any special plea in terms of subsection (1) shall, unless waived, be given as provided in section one hundred and seventy-nine.

(3) The onus of proving the defence referred to in subsection (1) shall lie upon the accused.

184 Statement of accused sufficient plea of former conviction or acquittal

In any plea of a former conviction or acquittal it shall be sufficient for an accused to state that he has been lawfully convicted or acquitted, as the case may be, of the offence charged.

185 Trial on plea to jurisdiction

Upon a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, the court shall proceed to satisfy itself, in such manner and upon such evidence as it thinks fit, whether it has jurisdiction or not.

186 Issues raised by plea to be tried

If the accused pleads any plea or pleas other than the plea of guilty or a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, he is, by such plea without any further form, deemed to have demanded that the issues raised by such plea or pleas shall be tried by the court.

187 Lack of jurisdiction or title to prosecute not to be raised after conviction

Where an accused is convicted of an offence, the fact that—

- (a) in the case of proceedings before a magistrates court, the court did not have jurisdiction to try the accused in terms of section 56 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10]; or
- (b) in the case of proceedings before any court, the prosecutor did not have title to prosecute the accused;

shall not affect the validity of the conviction if the lack of such jurisdiction or title to prosecute, as the case may be, was not pleaded or raised during the proceedings and before such conviction.

188 Outline of State and defence cases

In a trial before a magistrate, if the accused pleads not guilty or a plea of not guilty is entered in terms of section one hundred and eighty-two—

- (a) the prosecutor shall make a statement, outlining the nature of his case and the material facts on which he relies; and
- (b) the accused shall be requested by the magistrate to make a statement, if he or she wishes, outlining the nature of his defence and the material facts on which he relies and, if he is not represented by a legal practitioner, his or her right to remain silent, and the consequences of exercising that right, shall be explained to him.

[Section amended by section 36 of Act 2 of 2016]

189 Statement made or withholding of relevant fact by accused may be used as evidence against him

- (1) Any statement referred to in paragraph (b) of section one hundred and eighty-eight may—
 - (a) be taken into account in deciding whether the accused is guilty of the offence charged or any other offence of which he may be found guilty on that charge; and
 - (b) except in so far as it amounts to an admission of any allegation made by the State, not be taken into account for the purpose of deciding whether the accused should be found not guilty in terms of subsection (3) of section one hundred and ninety-eight.

(2) If an accused, when so requested in terms of paragraph (b) of section one hundred and eighty-eight, has failed to mention any fact relevant to his defence, being a fact which in the circumstances existing at the time, he could reasonably have been expected to have mentioned, the court, in determining whether there is any evidence that the accused committed or whether the accused is guilty of the offence charged or any other offence of which he may be convicted on that charge, may draw such inferences from the failure as appear proper and the failure may, on the basis of such inferences, be treated as evidence corroborating any other evidence given against the accused.

When two or more persons are charged in the same indictment, summons or charge, whether with the same offence or with different offences, the court may at any time during the trial on the application of the prosecutor or of any of the accused, direct that the trial of the accused or any of them shall be held separately from the trial of the other or others of them, and may abstain from giving a judgment as to any of such accused.

(1) Every criminal trial shall take place and the witnesses shall, except as is otherwise specifically provided by this Act or any other enactment, give their evidence viva voce in open court in the presence of the accused, unless he so conducts himself as to render the continuance of the proceedings in his presence impracticable, in which event the court may order him to be removed and direct that the trial proceed in his absence.

(2) If the accused absents himself during the trial without leave, the court may direct a warrant to be issued to arrest him and bring him before the court forthwith.

(3) The court may, at any time during the trial, order that any or every person who is to be called as a witness, other than the accused himself, shall leave the court and remain absent until he is called, and that he shall remain in court after his evidence has been given.

- (b) may put in and read any documentary evidence which is admissible:

Provided that the prosecutor may, if the accused consents, put in the documentary evidence without reading it.

(3) If at the close of the case for the prosecution the court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence charged in the indictment, summons or charge, or any other offence of which he might be convicted thereon, it shall return a verdict of not guilty.

(4) If the Prosecutor-General is dissatisfied with a decision—

- (a) of a judge of the High Court in terms of subsection (3), he may with the leave of a judge of the Supreme Court appeal against the decision to the Supreme Court; or

- (b) if the accused is not legally represented, inform him of the provisions of the proviso to subsection (8) and of subsection (9) and of subsection (1) of section one hundred and ninety-nine.

(7) If the accused or his legal representative states that it is intended to adduce evidence for the defence or that the accused intends himself to give evidence, he may, by himself or his legal representative, address the court for the purpose of opening the evidence intended to be adduced for the defence, but without comment thereon.

(8) Subject to Part XIVA, any witnesses called for the defence shall be examined by the accused or his legal representative and the accused, if he gives evidence himself, shall be examined by his legal representative, if any, and the accused or his legal representative shall put in and read any documentary evidence which may be admissible:

Provided that no evidence shall be adduced for the defence before the accused is called to give evidence or is, in terms of subsection (9), questioned by the prosecutor or the court, unless the court in its discretion otherwise allows.

[Subsection amended by section 7 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(9) If the accused declines to give evidence, the prosecutor and the court may nevertheless question him and, if the accused is legally represented, his legal representative may thereafter question him subject to the rules applicable to a party re-examining his own witness.

199 Refusal of accused giving evidence or being questioned to answer question without just cause may be used as evidence against him

(1) If an accused who gives evidence or is questioned in terms of subsection (7), (8) or (9), as the case may be, of section one hundred and ninety-eight refuses to answer any question, he shall be asked to give his reasons for so refusing and, if he persists in his refusal, the court, in determining whether the accused is guilty of the offence charged or any other offence of which he may be convicted on that charge, may, unless satisfied that he had just cause for so persisting, draw such inferences from the refusal as appear proper and the refusal may, on the basis of such inferences, be treated as evidence corroborating any other evidence given against the accused.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), an accused who refuses to answer any question shall be deemed to do so without just cause—

- (a) in the case of an accused giving evidence in terms of subsection (8) of section one hundred and ninety-eight, unless he is entitled in terms of this Act to refuse to answer the question on the ground of privilege;
- (b) in the case of an accused who is questioned in terms of subsection (9) of section one hundred and ninety-eight, unless he would be entitled in terms of this Act to refuse to answer the question on the ground of privilege if he were giving evidence on his own behalf.

200 Summing up

After all the evidence has been adduced, the prosecutor shall be entitled to address the court, summing up the whole case, and the accused, or each of the accused if more than one, shall be entitled by himself or his legal representative to address the court and if, in his address, the accused or his legal representative raises any matter of law, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply, but only on the matter of law so raised.

201 Validity of verdict

(1) No verdict or judgment or other proceedings whatever of a court in a criminal case shall be invalid by reason of its happening on a Sunday.

(2) When by mistake a wrong judgment or sentence is delivered, the court may, before or immediately after it is recorded, amend the judgment or sentence, and it shall stand as ultimately amended.

202 Certain discrepancies between indictment and evidence may be corrected

(1) When on the trial of any indictment, summons or charge there appears to be any variance between the statement therein and the evidence offered in proof of such statement, or if it appears that any words or particulars that ought to have been inserted in the indictment, summons or charge have been omitted, or that any words or particulars that ought to have been omitted have been inserted, or that there is any other error in the indictment, summons or charge, the court may at any time before judgment, if it considers that the making of the necessary amendment in the indictment, summons or charge will not prejudice the accused in his defence, order that the indictment, summons or charge, whether or not it discloses an offence, be amended, so far as is necessary, by some officer of the court or other person, both in that part thereof where the variance, omission, insertion or error occurs and in every other part thereof which it may become necessary to amend.

(2) The amendment may be made on such terms, if any, as to postponing the trial as the court thinks reasonable and the indictment, summons or charge shall thereupon be amended in accordance with the order of the court, and after any such amendment the trial shall proceed at the appointed time upon the amended indictment, summons or charge in the same manner and with the same consequences in all respects as if it had been originally in its amended form.

(3) The fact that an indictment, summons or charge has not been amended as provided in this section shall not, unless the court has refused to allow the amendment, affect the validity of the proceedings thereunder.

203 Defect in indictment, summons or charge may be cured by evidence

When an indictment, summons or charge in respect of any offence is defective for want of the averment of any matter which is an essential ingredient of the offence, the defect shall be cured by evidence at the trial in respect of the offence proving the presence of such a matter which should have been averred, unless the want of such averment was brought to the notice of the court before judgment.

204 Verdict to be of same effect as if indictment had been originally correct

Any verdict or judgment which is given after the making of any amendment under this Act shall be of the same effect in all respects as if the indictment, summons or charge had originally been in the same form in which it was after such amendment was made.

PART XIV

WITNESSES AND EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

A. Securing attendance of witnesses

229 Process for securing attendance of witnesses

(1) In this section—

“prescribed officer” means the registrar, assistant registrar or clerk of the court or any officer prescribed by rules of court.

(2) Either party desiring to compel the attendance of any person to give evidence or to produce any books, papers or documents in any criminal case may take out of the office prescribed by rules of court the process of the court for that purpose.

(3) When the accused desires to have any witnesses subpoenaed and satisfies the prescribed officer of the court that—

(a) he is unable to pay the necessary costs and fees; and

(b) such witnesses are necessary and material for his defence;

the prescribed officer of the court shall subpoena such witnesses.

(4) In any case where the prescribed officer of the court is not so satisfied, he shall, upon the request of the accused, refer the application to the judge or magistrate who may grant or refuse such application or may defer giving his decision until he has heard the other evidence in the case or any part thereof.

230 Service of subpoenas

Service of subpoenas in criminal cases shall be effected in the manner provided by rules of court.

231 Duty of witness to remain in attendance

Every witness duly subpoenaed to attend and give evidence at any criminal trial shall be bound to attend and to remain in attendance throughout the trial, unless excused by the court.

232 Subpoenaing of witnesses or examination of persons in attendance by court

The court—

(a) may at any stage subpoena any person as a witness or examine any person in attendance though not subpoenaed as a witness, or may recall and re-examine any person already examined;

(b) shall subpoena and examine or recall and re-examine any person if his evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case.

233 Powers of court in case of default of witness in attending or giving evidence

(1) When any person appearing either in obedience to the subpoena or by virtue of a warrant, or being present and being verbally required by the court to give evidence, refuses to be sworn or, having been sworn, refuses to answer such questions as are put to him or refuses or fails to produce any document or thing which he is required to produce, without in any such case offering any just excuse for such refusal or failure, the court may adjourn the proceedings for any period not exceeding eight days, and may in the meantime, by warrant, commit the person so refusing or failing to a prison, unless he sooner consents to do what is required of him.

(2) If a person who has been committed in terms of subsection (1) upon being brought up at the adjourned hearing again refuses or fails to do what is so required of him, the court, if it sees fit, may again adjourn the proceedings and commit him for a like period, and so again from time to time until such person consents to do what is required of him.

(3) Nothing in this section shall prevent the court from giving judgment in any case or otherwise disposing of the same in the meantime according to any other sufficient evidence taken.

(4) No person shall be bound to produce any document or thing not specified or otherwise sufficiently described in the subpoena unless he actually has it in court.

234 Requiring witness to enter into recognizance

(1) Any court before which a trial is pending or proceeding may lawfully require any witness, either alone or together with one or more sufficient sureties to the satisfaction of the court, to enter into recognizance under condition that the witness shall at any time within twelve months from the date thereof appear and give evidence at the trial upon being served with a subpoena at some certain place to be selected by the witness.

(2) If any witness being required in terms of subsection (1) to enter into any such recognizance, refuses or fails so to do the court may commit to and detain in a prison the witness so refusing or failing until such recognizance has been entered into in terms of that subsection.

(3) The court may, in exercising its powers in terms of subsection (1), add to the recognizance conditions relating to one or more of the following matters which it thinks necessary or desirable in the interests of justice—

- (a) the surrender by the witness of his passport;
- (b) the times and places at which, and the persons to whom, the witness shall personally present himself;
- (c) the places where the witness is forbidden to go;
- (d) the prohibition of communication by the witness with the accused or any other witness;
- (e) any other matter relating to the conduct of the witness.

(4) Any recognizance entered into in terms of this section shall specify the forenames and surname of the person entering into it, his occupation or profession, if any, the place of his residence and the name and number, if any, of the street in which that place is, and whether he is an owner or tenant thereof or a lodger therein.

(5) Any recognizance entered into in terms of this section shall be liable to be estreated in the same manner as any forfeited recognizance is by law liable to be estreated by the court before which the principal party thereto was bound to appear.

235 Absconding witnesses

(1) When any person is bound by recognizance to give evidence or is likely to give material evidence before any court in respect of any offence, any magistrate may, upon information in writing and on oath that such person is about to abscond or has absconded, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person.

(2) If any person is arrested under a warrant issued in terms of subsection (1), any magistrate, if satisfied that the ends of justice would otherwise be defeated, may commit him to a prison until the time at which he is required to give evidence, unless in the meantime he produces sufficient sureties, but such person shall be entitled on demand to receive a copy of the information upon which the warrant for arrest was issued.

(3) If a peace officer believes on reasonable grounds that the delay in obtaining a warrant under subsection (1) would lead to a person who is bound by recognizance to give evidence or who is likely to give material evidence in respect of any offence absconding, he may arrest the person without warrant and shall, as soon as possible, bring him before a magistrate who may, upon being satisfied that the ends of justice would otherwise be defeated, commit the person to prison until the time at which he is required to give evidence, unless in the meantime he produces sufficient sureties.

(4) A person arrested in terms of subsection (3) shall be informed forthwith by the person arresting him of the cause of the arrest.

236 Committal of witness who refuses to enter into recognizance

Any witness who refuses to enter into any recognizance in terms of section two hundred and thirty-four may be committed by the court by warrant to the prison for the place where the trial is to be held, there to be kept until after the trial or until the witness enters into such a recognizance before a magistrate having jurisdiction in the place where the prison is situated:

Provided that, if the accused is afterwards discharged, any magistrate having jurisdiction shall order such witness to be discharged.

237 Arrest and punishment for failure to obey subpoena or to remain in attendance

(1) If any person subpoenaed to attend a criminal trial without reasonable excuse fails to obey the subpoena and it appears from the return or from the evidence given under oath that the subpoena was served upon the person to whom it is directed, or if any person who has attended in obedience to a subpoena fails to remain in attendance, the judge or magistrate may issue a warrant directing that such person be arrested and brought at a time and place stated in the warrant, or as soon thereafter as possible, before him or some other judge or magistrate.

(2) When a person has been arrested under a warrant issued in terms of subsection (1), he may be detained thereunder before the judge or magistrate who issued it or in any prison or lock-up or other place of detention or in the custody of the person who is in charge of him, with a view to securing his presence as a witness at the trial, or such judge or magistrate may release him on a recognizance, with or without sureties, for his appearance to give evidence as required and for his appearance at the inquiry mentioned in subsection (3).

(3) The judge or magistrate may in a summary manner inquire into the said person's failure to obey a subpoena or to remain in attendance and, unless it is proved that the said person had a reasonable excuse for such failure, the judge or magistrate may sentence him to a fine not exceeding level three or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

[Subsection amended by Act 22 of 2001]

(4) Any person sentenced by a magistrate to a fine or imprisonment in terms of subsection (3) shall have the same right of appeal as if he had been convicted and sentenced by a magistrates court in a criminal trial.

(5) If a person who has entered into a recognizance for his appearance to give evidence at a criminal trial or for his appearance at an inquiry referred to in subsection (3) fails so to appear, he may, apart from the estreatment of his recognizance, be dealt with as if he had failed to obey a subpoena to attend a criminal trial.

238 Service of subpoena to secure attendance of witness residing outside jurisdiction of court

(1) In this section—

“proper officer” includes the Sheriff, a deputy sheriff, messenger or deputy messenger or any other officer who by any enactment is charged with the duty of serving subpoenas to witnesses in criminal cases.

(2) When a subpoena to give evidence in a criminal case has been issued out of any court and it appears that the person whose attendance is thereby required resides or is for the time being in a province or, as the case may be, regional division outside the area of jurisdiction of that court, the subpoena shall be delivered to the proper officer within that province or, as the case may be, regional division and shall be served by him as soon as possible on such person:

Provided that—

(i) the necessary expenses to be incurred by the person subpoenaed in going to and returning from the court whereout the subpoena was issued, and his detention at the place whereat and for the purpose for which his attendance is required, shall be tendered to him with the subpoena;

(ii) if the subpoena is not sued out by the State, a sum sufficient to cover the expenses of serving the subpoena shall be lodged with the registrar or clerk of the court by the person suing out the subpoena.

(3) If any person who has been served in terms of subsection (2) with a subpoena and to whom has been tendered the expenses referred to in that subsection fails, without lawful excuse, to attend at the time and place mentioned in the subpoena, a magistrate of the province or, as the case may be, regional division within which that person resides or is for the time being may issue a warrant for the arrest of that person, who shall be liable to be dealt with in the same manner as he might have been dealt with if he had failed to attend without lawful excuse, when served with a subpoena to attend a like court in the area wherein he resides or is for the time being.

(4) The return to the proper officer showing that service of the subpoena has been duly effected, together with a certificate under the hand of the registrar or clerk of the court that the person whose attendance was required by the subpoena failed to attend when called upon, and has established no lawful excuse for the non-attendance, shall be sufficient proof of the non-attendance for the purpose of dealing with that person under subsection (3).

239 Payment of expenses of persons attending court

(1) Subject to this section, any court or magistrate may order the payment of an allowance, in accordance with a prescribed tariff, to any person attending a trial or other criminal proceedings:

Provided that an allowance shall be paid to a witness for the accused, or a person accompanying such a witness, only in such circumstances as may be prescribed.

[Subsection amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

(2) Any allowance paid in terms of subsection (1) shall be paid out of moneys appropriated for the purpose by Act of Parliament.

B. Evidence on commission

240 Taking evidence on commission

(1) When in the course of a trial or other criminal proceedings it appears to a judge or magistrate that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which in the circumstances of the case would be unreasonable, such judge or magistrate may dispense with the attendance of such witness and may issue a commission to any magistrate or, where the witness is outside Zimbabwe, to any fit and proper person outside Zimbabwe, authorizing such magistrate or person to take the evidence of such witness:

Provided that—

(i) the specific fact or facts with regard to which the evidence of the witness is required shall be set out, and the judge or magistrate may confine the examination of the witness to those facts;

(ii) when the commission is issued at the request of the prosecutor, the judge or magistrate shall, unless the accused states that he does not wish to be represented, direct as a condition of the issue of the commission that the expense necessary to the representation of the accused at the examination of the witness shall be paid by the prosecution in such amount or at such rate as may seem reasonable to the judge or magistrate granting the commission.

[Subsection amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

(2) The witness, before giving his evidence, shall make an oath or affirmation before the commissioner by whom he is to be examined that in the whole of his deposition he will tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and the evidence of such witness shall be taken down in writing by the commissioner and read over to him.

(3) Where the person appointed as commissioner and the witness to be examined are outside Zimbabwe, they shall be entitled to be paid out of moneys appropriated for the purpose by Act of Parliament such fee as may be approved by the Minister responsible for finance.

241 Parties may examine witness

(2) Any such party may appear before such magistrate or other person by his legal representative or, if not in custody, in person, and may examine, cross-examine and re-examine, as the case may be, the witness.

242 Return of commission

(1) After a commission under section two hundred and forty has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the court which issued it.

(2) The commission, the return thereto and the deposition shall be open at all reasonable times to the inspection of the parties, and may, subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in the case by either party, and shall form part of the record.

(3) Any deposition taken in terms of the commission may also be received in evidence at any subsequent stage of the case before another court.

243 Adjournment of inquiry or trial

250 Affirmations in lieu of oaths

(1) In any case where any person who is or may be required to take an oath objects to do so, it shall be lawful for such person to make an affirmation in the words following:—"I do truly affirm and declare that" (here state the matter to be affirmed or declared).

(2) An affirmation or declaration made in terms of subsection (1) shall be of the same effect as if the person making it had taken an oath.

- (i) before any such person proceeds to give evidence, the judge or magistrate before whom he is called as a witness shall admonish him to speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and shall further administer or cause to be administered to him any form of admonition which appears, either from his own statement or from any other source of information, to be calculated to impress his mind and bind his conscience, and which is not, as being of an inhuman, immoral or irreligious nature, obviously unfit to be administered;
- (ii) any such person who wilfully and falsely states anything which, if sworn, would have amounted to perjury or any offence declared by any enactment to be equivalent to perjury or punishable as perjury, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level seven or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

[Section amended by section 4 of Act 22 of 2001 and by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

E. Admissibility of evidence

252 Inadmissibility of irrelevant evidence

No evidence as to any fact, matter or thing shall be admissible which is irrelevant or immaterial and cannot conduce to prove or disprove any point or fact at issue in the case which is being tried.

253 Hearsay evidence

(1) No evidence which is of the nature of hearsay evidence shall be admissible in any case in which such evidence would be inadmissible in any similar case depending in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England.

(2) When evidence of a statement, oral or written, made in the ordinary course of duty, contemporaneously with the facts stated and without motive to misrepresent, would be admissible in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England if the person who made the statement were dead, such evidence shall be admissible in any criminal proceedings if the person who made the statement is dead or unfit by reason of his bodily or mental condition to attend as a witness or cannot with reasonable diligence be identified or found or brought before the court.

[Subsection amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

- (3) The court may, in deciding whether or not the person in question—
 - (a) is unfit to attend as a witness, act on a certificate purporting to be a certificate of a medical practitioner;
 - (b) is dead or cannot with reasonable diligence be identified or found or brought before the court, act on evidence submitted by way of affidavit.

254 Admissibility of dying declarations

(1) A declaration made by any deceased person upon the apprehension of death shall be admissible or inadmissible in evidence in every case in which such declaration would be admissible or inadmissible in any similar case depending in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England.

(2) When it is made to appear to the satisfaction of any magistrate that any person is dangerously ill and, in the opinion of a medical practitioner, not likely to recover from such illness and is able and willing to give material information relating to any offence or to any person accused of any offence, and it is not practicable to examine in accordance with any other provision of this Act the person so being ill, it shall be lawful for the said magistrate to take in writing the statement on oath of such person.

(3) The magistrate taking a statement in terms of subsection (2) shall sign it and set out his reason for taking the same, the date and place of taking it and the names of the persons, if any, present at the time.

(4) If afterwards, upon the trial of any offender or offence to which the same may relate, the person who made a statement taken in terms of subsection (2) is proved to be dead, or if it is proved that there is no reasonable probability that such person will ever be able to travel or give evidence, it shall be lawful to read such statement in evidence either for or against the accused without further proof thereof—

- (a) if the same purports to be signed by the magistrate by or before whom it purports to be taken; and
- (b) if it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that reasonable notice of the intention to take such statement has been served upon the person, whether prosecutor or accused, against whom it is proposed to be read in evidence and that such person or his legal representative had or might have had, if he had chosen to be present, full opportunity of cross-examining the person who made the same.

255 Admissibility in criminal cases of evidence of absent witnesses in certain circumstances

(1) The evidence of any witness—

- (a) given at a former criminal trial of an accused on the same or a different charge and recorded in a document purporting—

- (i) to be a transcript of the original record of the said evidence; and
- (ii) to have been certified as correct under the hand of the person who transcribed it;

or

- (b) whose deposition has been verified in terms of section 115A;

shall, subject to subsection (2), be admissible in evidence on the trial of the accused for any offence.

(2) The evidence of a witness referred to in subsection (1) shall not be admissible unless—

- (a) it is proved on oath to the satisfaction of the court that the witness—
 - (i) is dead or is incapable of giving evidence, or that he or she is too ill to attend; or
 - (ii) is kept away from the trial by the means and contrivance of the accused; or
 - (iii) cannot be found after diligent search, or cannot be compelled to attend; or
 - (iv) is an expert witness whose evidence is given in his or her capacity as an expert witness, and that the nature of the witness's professional commitments is such as to render it impossible to secure his or her attendance at the trial on any given day; and that the evidence is the same that was given at the previous criminal trial or at the conference referred to in section 115A, as the case may be, without any alteration; and

- (b) it appears on the record or is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the accused, personally or by his or her legal representative, had a full opportunity of cross-examining the witness, even if the accused or his or her legal representative, did not avail himself or herself of that opportunity.

(3) Where it is proved on oath to the satisfaction of the court that any witness, other than one whose deposition was verified as mentioned in subsection (1)(b)—

- (a) is dead or incapable of giving evidence, or is too ill, to attend; or
- (b) has been kept away from the trial by the means and contrivance of the accused; or
- (c) cannot be found after diligent search or cannot be compelled to attend; or
- (d) is an expert witness whose evidence is given in his or her capacity as an expert witness, and that the nature of the witness's professional commitments is such as to render it impossible to secure his or her attendance at the trial on any given day;

the evidence of such witness may, at the discretion of the court, be admissible in evidence on the trial of the accused for any offence.

256 Admissibility of confessions and statements by accused

(1) Any confession of the commission of an offence and any statement which is proved to have been freely and voluntarily made by an accused person without his having been unduly influenced thereto shall be admissible in evidence against such accused person if tendered by the prosecutor, whether such confession or statement was made before or after his arrest, or after committal and whether reduced into writing or not:

Provided that—

- (i) a certified copy of the record produced in terms of section 115B shall be admissible in evidence against the accused;
- (ii) any information given under any enactment which provides a penalty for a failure or refusal to give such information shall not, on that account alone, be inadmissible.

[Subsection amended by section 19 of Act 9 of 2006.]

(2) A confession or statement confirmed in terms of subsection (3) of section one hundred and thirteen shall be received in evidence before any court upon its mere production by the prosecutor without further proof:

Provided that the confession or statement shall not be used as evidence against the accused if he proves that the statement was not made by him or was not made freely and voluntarily without his having been unduly influenced thereto, and if, after the accused has presented his defence to the indictment, summons or charge, the prosecutor considers it necessary to adduce further evidence in relation to the making of such confession or statement, he may re-open his case for that purpose.

(3) If in any confession or statement made or evidence given by an accused person which would otherwise be admissible there is contained matter which may be prejudicial to the accused and which is not relevant to the charge preferred against him, the prosecutor may delete such matter from the confession, statement or evidence, as the case may be, and such confession, statement or evidence, as the case may be, shall be admissible against such accused person:

Provided that no confession, statement or evidence from which any matter has been deleted shall be adduced or received in evidence unless a copy of the confession, statement or evidence from which such matter has been deleted has been served upon the accused and he has not, within five days of such service, demanded that the whole or part of any matter so deleted shall be included in the confession, statement or evidence if it is adduced in evidence by the prosecutor.

(4) If an accused person demands that the whole or any part of any matter referred to in subsection (3) shall be included in his confession, statement or evidence if it is adduced in evidence by the prosecutor, then such confession, statement or evidence containing such matter shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Act, be admissible in evidence against him.

257 Failure of accused to mention certain facts to police may be treated as evidence

Where in any proceedings against a person evidence is given that the accused, on being—

- (a) questioned as a suspect by a police officer investigating an offence; or
- (b) charged by a police officer with an offence; or
- (c) informed by a police officer that he might be prosecuted for an offence; failed to mention any fact relevant to his or her defence in those proceedings, being a fact which, in the circumstances existing at the time, he or she could reasonably have been expected to have mentioned when so questioned, charged or informed, as the case may be, the court, in determining whether there is any evidence that the accused committed or whether the accused is guilty of the offence charged or any other offence of which he or she may be convicted on that charge, may draw such inferences from the failure as appear proper and the failure may, on the basis of such inferences, be treated as evidence corroborating any other evidence given against the accused.

258 Admissibility of facts discovered by means of inadmissible confession

(1) It shall be lawful to admit evidence of any fact otherwise admissible in evidence, notwithstanding that such fact has been discovered and come to the knowledge of the witness who gives evidence respecting it only in consequence of information given by the person under trial in any confession or statement which by law is not admissible in evidence against him on such trial, and notwithstanding that the fact has been discovered and come to the knowledge of the witness against the wish or will of the accused.

(2) It shall be lawful to admit evidence that anything was pointed out by the person under trial or that any fact or thing was discovered in consequence of information given by such person notwithstanding that such pointing out or information forms part of a confession or statement which by law is not admissible against him on such trial.

258A Admissibility or inadmissibility of illegally-obtained evidence

(1) In determining, for the purposes of section 70(3) of the Constitution, whether to exclude evidence that has been obtained in a manner that violates any provision of Chapter 4 of the Constitution, a court shall endeavour to strike a proper balance between—

- (a) safeguarding—
 - (i) the rights of the accused concerned; and
 - (ii) the integrity of the criminal justice system against serious or persistent breaches of the law by the police or other employees of the State;

and

- (b) the public interest in—
 - (i) doing justice to the victim or victims of the crime in question; and

- (ii) upholding the confidence of the public in the ability of the criminal justice system to protect members of the public from crime, especially grave, violent or prevalent crime.
- (2) In applying the test referred to in subsection (1) a court must bear in mind that, in general, where the questioned evidence is obtained by a contravention of Chapter 4 of the Constitution that is—
- (a) inadvertent or trivial, the considerations referred to in subsection (1)(b) shall override the ones referred to in subsection (1)(a);
 - (b) not inadvertent or not trivial or both, only compelling reasons will justify the considerations referred to in subsection (1)(b) overriding the ones referred to in subsection (1)(a), where the State has shown that those compelling reasons are the motive for that contravention.
- (3) Evidence that is obtained in a manner that violates any provision of Chapter 4 of the Constitution, but which is admitted by a court after taking into account the considerations referred to in subsections (1) and (2), shall not be regarded as rendering the trial unfair or otherwise as being detrimental to the administration of justice or the public interest.
- (4) For the avoidance of doubt, the fact that a court has admitted illegally obtained evidence in accordance with this section does not prejudice the right of an accused person to pursue a civil remedy for any breach of the law in consequence of which the evidence was obtained.

[Section inserted by section 39 of Act 2 of 2016]

259 Confession not admissible against other persons

No confession made by any person shall be admissible as evidence against any other person.

260 Evidence of character—when admissible

Except as is provided in section two hundred and ninety, no evidence as to the character of the accused or as to the character of any woman on whose person any rape or assault with intent to commit a rape or indecent assault is alleged to have been committed shall, in any such case, be admissible or inadmissible if such evidence would be inadmissible or admissible in any similar case depending in the Supreme Court of Judicature of England.

261 Evidence of genuineness of disputed writings

Comparison of a disputed writing with any writing proved to the satisfaction of the court to be genuine shall be permitted to be made by witnesses, and such writings and the evidence of witnesses respecting the same may be submitted to the court or magistrate, as the case may be, as evidence of the genuineness or otherwise of the writing in dispute.

[Section amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

262 Certified copy of record of criminal proceedings sufficient without production of record

When it is necessary to prove the trial and conviction or acquittal of any person charged with any offence, it shall not be necessary to produce the record of the conviction or acquittal of such person, or a copy thereof, but it shall be sufficient that it is certified or purports to be certified under the hand of the registrar or clerk of the court or other officer having the custody of the records of the court where such conviction or acquittal took place, or by the deputy of such registrar, clerk or other officer, that the paper produced is a copy of the record of the indictment, summons or charge and of the trial, conviction and judgment or acquittal, as the case may be, omitting the formal parts thereof.

263 Issue estoppel

When it is legally competent, notwithstanding the former conviction of an accused, again to charge the accused with an offence arising out of the same act or omission upon which the former conviction was based, a certified copy of the record of the former proceedings shall be admissible on its mere production by the prosecutor as conclusive proof that the accused committed the former offence.

264 Evidence of bodily appearance, health or prints of accused

(1) Whenever it is relevant in criminal proceedings to ascertain whether any finger-print, palm-print or foot-print of an accused person corresponds to any other finger-print, palm-print or foot-print, or to ascertain the state of health of an accused person or whether the body of an accused person has or had any mark, characteristic or distinguishing feature or shows or showed any condition or appearance—

- (a) the court may order that all necessary steps be taken to ascertain those matters, including arrangements for—
 - (i) the taking of the accused person's finger-prints, palm-prints or foot-prints; and
 - (ii) the taking of a blood, saliva or tissue sample from the accused person; and
 - (iii) the examination of the accused person;
- (b) evidence of the finger-prints, palm-prints or foot-prints of the accused person or that the body of the accused person has or had any mark, characteristic or distinguishing feature or shows or showed any condition or appearance, including evidence of the result of the testing of any blood, saliva or tissue sample taken from the accused person, shall be admissible in those criminal proceedings.

(2) Any examination of an accused person conducted pursuant to an order of a court in terms of subsection (1)(a) shall be conducted with strict regard for decency and decorum.

(3) Evidence referred to in subsection (1)(b) shall not be inadmissible solely on the ground that it was taken or ascertained against the wish or the will of the accused person.

(4) Any finger-prints, palm-prints, footprints, photographs or samples and the records of any steps taken under this section shall be destroyed if the person concerned is found not guilty at his or her trial or if his or her conviction is set aside by a superior court or if the charge against him or her is withdrawn.

(5) Section 41B(6) applies, with such changes as may be necessary, to a person referred to in subsection (4).

[Section inserted by section 40 of Act 2 of 2016]

[Section amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

266 Proof of signature of public officer not necessary

(a) purporting to bear the signature of any person holding a public office; and

(b) bearing a seal or stamp which purports to be a seal or stamp of the Ministry, department, office or institution to which such person is attached; shall on its mere production, without proof of such signature, seal or stamp, be presumed to be signed by such person unless it is proved not to have been signed by him.

266A Admissibility of evidence obtained from certain foreign countries

(1) Subject to this section—

(a) the record of any evidence taken; or

(b) any document or other article produced or obtained;

in response to a request made by the Prosecutor-General in terms of section 10 of the Criminal Matters (Mutual Assistance) Act [Chapter 9:06] shall be admissible in evidence in any court on its mere production by any person, if the court considers that it should be admitted in the interests of justice.

(2) In deciding whether or not it is in the interests of justice for any record, document or article to be admitted in evidence in terms of subsection (1), the court shall have regard to—

(a) the nature of the proceedings; and

(b) the nature of the record, document or article; and

(c) the purpose for which the record, document or article is tendered in evidence; and

(d) any prejudice that may be occasioned to the accused or the prosecution if the record, document or article is admitted in evidence; and

(e) any other factor which, in the court's opinion, should be taken into account.

(3) In estimating the weight, if any, to be given to any record, document or article admitted in terms of subsection (1), the court shall have regard to all the factors which, in its opinion, affect its probative value.

(4) Where a document is admissible in evidence only if it has been prepared, attested, certified, compiled or executed by a particular person or by a person holding a particular office, possessing a particular qualification, performing a particular function or engaged in a particular activity, a similar document emanating from a foreign country shall not be admissible in terms of subsection (1) unless it has been prepared, attested, certified, compiled or executed, as the case may be, by an equivalent person in that foreign country.

(5) For the purposes of subsection (4), the Minister may, by statutory instrument, declare that any person or class of persons in a foreign country shall be regarded as equivalent to any person or class of persons in Zimbabwe:

Provided that an omission by the Minister to make such a declaration shall not prevent a court from determining for itself whether or not any person in a foreign country is equivalent to a person in Zimbabwe.

(6) A certificate purporting to be signed by the Prosecutor-General or the National Director of Public Prosecutions and stating that any record, document or article was produced or obtained in response to a request in terms of section 10 of the Criminal Matters (Mutual Assistance) Act [Chapter 9:06] shall be admissible in evidence in any court on its mere production by any person, and shall be prima facie proof of the facts stated therein.

[Subsection amended by Act 5 of 2014]

(7) This section shall not be construed as affecting the admissibility under any other law of any record, document or article referred to in subsection (1).

[Section as inserted by section 2 of Act 8 of 1998.]

F. Evidence of accomplices

267 Accomplices as witnesses for prosecution

(1) When the prosecutor at any trial informs the court that any person produced by him or her as a witness on behalf of the prosecution has, in his or her opinion, been an accomplice, either as principal or accessory, in the commission of the offence alleged in the charge, such person shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Act, be compelled to be sworn or to make affirmation as a witness and to answer any question the reply to which would tend to incriminate him or her in respect of such offence.

[Subsection substituted by section 22 of Act 9 of 2006.]

(2) If a person referred to in subsection (1) fully answers to the satisfaction of the court all such lawful questions as may be put to him, he shall, subject to subsection (3), be discharged from all liability to prosecution for the offence concerned and the court or magistrate, as the case may be, shall cause such discharge to be entered on the record of the proceedings.

(3) A discharge in terms of subsection (2) shall be of no effect and the entry thereof on the record of the proceedings shall be deleted if, when called as a witness at the trial of any person upon a charge of having committed the offence concerned, the person concerned refuses to be sworn or to make affirmation as a witness or refuses or fails to answer fully to the satisfaction of the court all such lawful questions as may be put to him.

268 Evidence of accomplice cannot be used against him

No evidence given by an accomplice on behalf of the prosecution at any trial in respect of any offence shall, if the said accomplice is thereafter prosecuted for such offence, be admissible in evidence against him at his trial:

Provided that if such accomplice is subsequently prosecuted for perjury or for an offence in terms of subsection (3) of section one hundred and fifty arising from the giving of such evidence, nothing contained in this section shall prevent the admission against him in evidence at his trial for the said perjury or for such offence of the evidence so given.

[Section amended by section 28 of Act 9 of 2006.]

G. Sufficiency of evidence

269 Sufficiency of one witness in criminal cases, except perjury and treason

It shall be lawful for the court by which any person prosecuted for any offence is tried to convict such person of any offence alleged against him in the indictment, summons or charge under trial on the single evidence of any competent and credible witness:

Provided that it shall not be competent for any court—

- (a) to convict any person of perjury on the evidence of any one witness as to the falsity of any statement made by the accused unless, in addition to and independently of the testimony of such witness, some other competent and credible evidence as to the falsity of such statement is given to such court;
- (b) to convict any person of treason, except upon the evidence of two witnesses where one overt act is charged in the indictment or, where two or more such overt acts are so charged, upon the evidence of one witness to each such overt act;
- (c) to convict any person on the single evidence of any witness of an offence in respect of which provision to the contrary is made by any enactment.

270 Conviction on single evidence of accomplice, provided the offence is proved aliunde

Any court which is trying any person on a charge of any offence may convict him of any offence alleged against him in the indictment, summons or charge under trial on the single evidence of any accomplice:

Provided that the offence has, by competent evidence other than the single and unconfirmed evidence of the accomplice, been proved to the satisfaction of such court to have been actually committed.

271 Procedure on plea of guilty

(1) Where a person arraigned before the High Court on any charge pleads guilty to the offence charged or to any other offence of which he might be found guilty on that charge and the prosecutor accepts that plea, the court may, if the accused has pleaded guilty to any offence other than murder, convict and sentence him for that offence without hearing any evidence.

(2) Where a person arraigned before a magistrates court on any charge pleads guilty to the offence charged or to any other offence of which he might be found guilty on that charge and the prosecutor accepts that plea—

- (a) the court may, if it is of the opinion that the offence does not merit punishment of imprisonment without the option of a fine or of a fine exceeding level three, convict the accused of the offence to which he has pleaded guilty and impose any competent sentence other than—
 - (i) imprisonment without the option of a fine; or
 - (ii) a fine exceeding level three; or deal with the accused otherwise in accordance with the law;

[Paragraph amended by section 8 of Act 8 of 1997.]

- (b) the court shall, if it is of the opinion that the offence merits any punishment referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii) of paragraph (a) or if requested thereto by the prosecutor—
- (i) explain the charge and the essential elements of the offence to the accused and to that end require the prosecutor to state, in so far as the acts or omissions on which the charge is based are not apparent from the charge, on what acts or omissions the charge is based; and
 - (ii) inquire from the accused whether he understands the charge and the essential elements of the offence and whether his plea of guilty is an admission of the elements of the offence and of the acts or omissions stated in the charge or by the prosecutor; and may, if satisfied that the accused understands the charge and the essential elements of the offence and that he admits the elements of the offence and the acts or omissions on which the charge is based as stated in the charge or by the prosecutor, convict the accused of the offence to which he has pleaded guilty on his plea of guilty and impose any competent sentence or deal with the accused otherwise in accordance with the law:

Provided that, if the accused is legally represented, the court may, in lieu of the procedure provided in subparagraphs (i) and (ii), satisfy itself that the accused understands the charge and the essential elements of the offence and that he admits the elements of the offence and the acts or omissions on which the charge is based as stated in the charge or by the prosecutor by relying upon a statement to that effect by the legal representative of the accused.

- (3) Where a magistrate proceeds in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (2)—
- (a) the explanation of the charge and the essential elements of the offence; and
 - (b) any statement of the acts or omissions on which the charge is based referred to in subparagraph (i) of that paragraph; and
 - (c) the reply by the accused to the inquiry referred to in subparagraph (ii) of that paragraph; and
 - (d) any statement made to the court by the accused in connection with the offence to which he has pleaded guilty;

Provided that at such an interview the merits of the case shall not be canvassed or discussed.

319D Court to give parties opportunity to make representations

(1) Where an intermediary has been appointed for a vulnerable witness, no party to the criminal proceedings concerned shall put any question to the vulnerable witness except through the intermediary:

Provided that the court may put any question to the witness directly or through the intermediary.

(2) Subject to any directions given by the court, an intermediary—

- (a) shall be obliged to convey to the vulnerable witness concerned only the substance and effect of any question put to the witness;
- (b) may relay to the court the vulnerable witness's answer to any question put to the witness:

Provided that when doing so the intermediary shall, so far as possible, repeat to the court the witness's precise words.

(3) Where a support person has been appointed for a vulnerable witness, the support person shall be entitled to sit or stand near the witness whilst the witness is giving evidence in order to provide moral support for the witness, and shall perform such other functions for that purpose as the court may direct.

319H Weight to be given to evidence of witness for whom intermediary or support person appointed

When determining what weight, if any, should be given to the evidence of a vulnerable witness for whom an intermediary or a support person has been appointed, the court shall pay due regard to the effect of the appointment on the witness's evidence and on any cross-examination of the witness.

- (ii) no hearsay evidence, other than evidence of a statistical nature, and no affidavit, written report or written statement shall be called or tendered by the accused or his legal representative unless the prosecutor consents thereto;
- (iii) the court in which any affidavit or written report is tendered may cause the person making it to be summoned to give oral evidence in the proceedings;
- (iv) no hearsay evidence, other than evidence of a statistical nature, shall be given by a witness called by the court pursuant to its powers conferred by section two hundred and thirty-two unless both the prosecutor and the accused or his legal representative consent thereto.

[Subsection repealed by section 26 of Act 9 of 2006.]

(5) Where an accused has been convicted of any offence otherwise than in terms of section two hundred and seventy-one, the provisions of subsection (5) of that section shall apply, mutatis mutandis.

(6) Any warrant for the execution of any sentence passed in a criminal case by any court may be issued either by the judge or magistrate who passed the sentence or by any other judge or magistrate of that court.

(7) If, in a magistrates court, sentence is not passed upon an offender forthwith upon his conviction or if, by reason of any decision or order of the Supreme Court or High Court, as the case may be, on appeal, review or otherwise, it is necessary to add to or vary any sentence passed in a magistrates court, or to pass sentence anew in such court, any magistrate of that court may, in the absence of the magistrate who convicted the offender or passed the sentence, as the case may be, pass sentence on the offender after consideration of the evidence recorded and in the presence of the offender.

334A Sentencing guidelines

(1) In this section—

“draft sentencing guidelines” means sentencing guidelines that have not been published in accordance with subsection (10) or (11)(b)(i) or (ii);

“presumptive penalty” means a penalty expressed as a specific amount of a fine or a specific period of imprisonment or both that is midway between an augmented penalty which may be imposed in aggravating circumstances (whether or not these circumstances are specified in the enactment concerned), and a diminished penalty which may be imposed in mitigating circumstances (whether or not these circumstances are specified in the enactment concerned);

“sentencing guidelines” means guidelines relating to the sentencing of offenders, which have been formulated in terms of this section;

“table of presumptive penalties” means a table setting forth for each offence included in the table, a presumptive penalty, together with the aggravating and mitigating circumstances that may justify a court in departing from the presumptive penalty.

(2) For the avoidance of any doubt it is declared that this section must not be construed as derogating from or infringing upon the exclusive competence of the Legislature to enact punishments for breaches of any law, including the enactment of maximum, minimum and presumptive levels of any fine or maximum, minimum and presumptive lengths of any sentence of imprisonment.

(3) The Judicial Service Commission may from time to time convene a conference bringing together representatives of---

(a) judges of the Constitutional Court, the Supreme Court and the High Court; and

(b) magistrates; and

(c) the National Prosecuting Authority; and

(d) the Police Service; and

(e) the Prisons and Correctional Service; and

(f) the Law Society of Zimbabwe; and

(g) such other organisations and bodies as, in the Commission’s opinion, have expertise or an interest in crime, punishment and the rehabilitation or treatment of criminals; for the purpose of studying and discussing the objectives, policies, standards and criteria for sentencing offenders, and formulating draft sentencing guidelines

(4) The procedure to be followed at a judicial conference shall be as prescribed or, in relation to any matter that is not prescribed, as determined by the Judicial Service Commission.

(5) Draft sentencing guidelines may relate to all matters relating to the sentencing of offenders and, in particular, to—

(a) inquiries and investigations to be conducted by courts prior to sentencing offenders;

(b) the factors to be considered by courts when sentencing offenders;

(c) forms of punishment that may be imposed as alternatives to custodial sentences;

(d) principles and criteria which will assist in promoting consistency in sentencing and the equitable administration of criminal justice in Zimbabwe; and they may be formulated so as to be general in nature or so as to apply to particular offences or classes of offences or to particular classes of offenders.

(6) In formulating draft sentencing guidelines, a judicial conference shall pay regard to—

(a) the need to promote consistency in sentencing; and (b) the impact of sentencing decisions on offenders and their families as well as on victims of offences; and

(c) the need to promote public confidence in the criminal justice system; and

(d) the cost of different sentences and their relative effectiveness in rehabilitating offenders and reducing crime.

(7) Unless a judicial conference agrees upon some other form, draft sentencing guidelines shall be in the form of a table of presumptive penalties supplemented by additional guidelines addressing such of the factors referred to in subsection (5) as are relevant to each offence or class of offence included in the table.

(8) As soon as practicable after a judicial conference has formulated draft sentencing guidelines, the Judicial Service Commission shall approve them, with or without amendments, for submission to the Minister in terms of subsection (9).

(9) As soon as practicable after approving the draft sentencing guidelines, with or without amendments, the Judicial Service Commission shall, subject to subsection (10), submit them to the Minister for publication as regulations in terms of section 389, and upon such publication the courts shall pay due regard to the applicable sentencing guidelines when sentencing offenders and, while not being bound by the guidelines, must, when departing from them in any case, record the reasons for doing so.

(10) The Minister must publish the draft sentencing guidelines substantially in the form in which he or she receives them from the Judicial Service Commission, unless he or she has any substantial objections to them, in which event the Minister must return them (together with written notification of his or her objections and of the reasons for them) to Judicial Service Commission for consideration of his or her objections by the Judicial Service Commission or, if the Commission so determines, at the next judicial conference following the notification of his or her objections.

(11) If after notification of the Minister's objections to the draft sentencing guidelines the Judicial Service Commission or, as the case may be, the next judicial conference—

- (a) upholds the Minister's objections, the Judicial Service Commission shall resubmit them with the appropriate amendments to the Minister for publication as regulations in terms of section 389;
- (b) declines, in whole or in part, to uphold the Minister's objections, the Judicial Service Commission shall resubmit them, together with the reasons for the Commission or the judicial conference so declining, to the Minister, who may thereupon—
 - (i) publish them substantially in the form in which he or she first received them from the Judicial Service Commission; or
 - (ii) publish such part of them as the Minister did not object to in his or her original notification of objections under subsection (7); or
 - (iii) refuse to publish them as regulations in terms of section 389.

(12) Sentencing guidelines may be amended, replaced or revoked by a subsequent judicial conference, and thereupon subsections (5) to (11) shall apply to such amendment, replacement or revocation.

[Section inserted by section 41 of Act 2 of 2016]

335 Consideration of other offences admitted by accused

(1) Upon convicting an accused of any offence, the court may, with the prosecutor's consent and on application by the accused, pass sentence upon the accused for other untried offences as if they had been separately charged if the court is satisfied that the accused freely and voluntarily admits having committed those other offences.

(2) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 56 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10], a magistrates court may, in terms of subsection (1), pass sentence upon the accused for an offence notwithstanding the fact that no act, omission or event which is an element of the offence took place in the province or regional division for which the court is established.

(3) If the court passes sentence upon the accused for an offence in terms of subsection (1), the court shall record—

- (a) the date, place and nature of the offence; and
- (b) the sentence passed upon the accused in respect thereof; and the accused shall be deemed to have been convicted and sentenced for the offence.

(4) If the conviction of the offence with which the accused was charged is set aside on appeal or review, the conviction and sentence referred to in subsection (3) shall be deemed to be set aside:

Provided that no person shall be entitled to plead that he has already been acquitted of an offence with which he is charged by virtue of the setting aside of a conviction in terms of this subsection.

(2) For the purpose of making the determination referred to in subsection (1), the judge shall direct one or more medical practitioners who are registered in terms of the Health Professions Act [Chapter 27:19] to examine the woman privately, either together or successively, and to ascertain whether she is pregnant or not.

[Subsection amended by section 151 of Act 6 of 2000.]

342 Manner of carrying out death sentence

(1) As soon as practicable after a sentence of death is passed the judge who passed the sentence or any other judge of the court shall issue his warrant to the Sheriff or his deputy for the execution of the sentence, but such warrant shall not be executed until the Prosecutor-General has, in writing signed by him, given notice to the Sheriff or the deputy that the President has decided not to grant a pardon to or reprieve the person so sentenced or otherwise exercise the prerogative of mercy in respect of him.

(2) As soon after the receipt of the notice referred to in subsection (1) by the Sheriff or his deputy as fitting arrangements for the carrying out of the sentence can be made in or in the precincts of a prison appointed in accordance with law for the carrying out of sentences of capital punishment, the Sheriff or his deputy shall execute the judge's warrant issued to him in terms of subsection (1) in the appointed prison or its precincts:

Provided that the Sheriff or his deputy shall not execute the judge's warrant if at any time the Prosecutor-General, by notice in writing under his own hand to the Sheriff or the deputy sheriff, intimates that the President has decided to grant a pardon or reprieve to the person so sentenced or otherwise to exercise the prerogative of mercy with regard to him.

(3) Any notice by the Prosecutor-General under the proviso to subsection (2) shall be construed for all purposes as a cancellation of the judge's warrant.

B. Imprisonment and fine

343 Cumulative or concurrent sentences

(1) When a person is convicted at one trial of two or more different offences or when a person under sentence or undergoing punishment for one offence is convicted of another offence, the court may sentence him to such several punishments for such offences or for such last offence, as the case may be, as the court is competent to impose.

(2) When sentencing any person to punishments in terms of subsection (1), the court may direct the order in which the sentences shall be served or that such sentences shall run concurrently.

344 Discretion of court as to amount and nature of punishment

(2) A person liable by law to be sentenced to pay a fine of any amount may be sentenced to pay a fine of any lesser amount.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) shall not apply to any offence for which a minimum penalty is prescribed in the enactment prescribing a punishment for the offence.

344A Imprisonment for life

Subject to any other law, the effect of a sentence of imprisonment for life imposed on or after the date of commencement of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Amendment Act, 1997, shall be that the person so sentenced shall remain imprisoned for the rest of his life.

[Section inserted by section 14 of Act 8 of 1997.]

345 Periodical imprisonment

(1) For the purposes of this section—

“appropriate prison” means a prison specified by the Minister, by statutory instrument, as a prison in which a person may be sentenced to undergo periodical imprisonment in terms of this section.

(2) If a court convicts a person of an offence specified in the Sixth Schedule, it may, in lieu of any other punishment referred to in subsection (2) of section three hundred and thirty-six and after ascertaining from the officer in charge of the appropriate prison that accommodation for the purpose is available, sentence that person to undergo, in accordance with the law relating to prisons, periodical imprisonment in that prison for a period of not less than ninety-six hours and not more than two thousand hours.

(3) The court imposing a sentence of periodical imprisonment upon any person in terms of this section shall—

- (a) cause such photographs, finger-prints, palm-prints or footprints of that person to be taken as are reasonably necessary for identification purposes; and
- (b) cause that person to be furnished with a written notice in the prescribed form directing that he shall, on a date and at a time specified in the notice or, if prevented from doing so by circumstances beyond his control, as soon as possible thereafter, surrender himself for the purpose of undergoing that imprisonment to the officer in charge of the prison specified in the notice.

(4) A copy of the notice referred to in subsection (3) shall serve as a warrant for the admission into the prison concerned of the convicted person and his confinement therein in accordance with the law relating to prisons.

(5) A person who—

- (a) without lawful excuse, the proof whereof shall be on him, fails to comply with a notice with which he has been furnished in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (3); or
- (b) surrenders himself for the purpose of undergoing periodical imprisonment while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs; or

(c) impersonates or falsely represents himself to be a person who has been directed to surrender himself for the purpose of undergoing periodical imprisonment; shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

(6) If, before the expiry of a sentence of periodical imprisonment imposed on a person in terms of this section, that person undergoes punishment consisting of any other form of detention imposed by any court, any magistrate before whom that person is brought shall set aside the unexpired portion of the sentence of periodical imprisonment and, after considering the evidence recorded in respect of the offence in respect of which the sentence of periodical imprisonment was imposed, may impose, in lieu of such unexpired portion, any punishment which is competent for that offence and does not exceed his own punitive jurisdiction in respect of that offence.

(7) The Minister may, by notice in a statutory instrument, add to, amend or replace the whole or any part of the Sixth Schedule:

Provided that it shall not be competent to include in the Sixth Schedule any offence for which a sentence of death or a minimum penalty is prescribed by any enactment.

(8) A sentence of periodical imprisonment provided for by this section shall not be regarded as a sentence of imprisonment without the option of a fine for the purposes of any enactment relating to a disqualification unless that enactment provides otherwise.

346 Extended imprisonment

(1) Subject to this section, in the exercise of his powers in terms of section two hundred and twenty-eight or three hundred and thirty-three, a judge may sentence to extended imprisonment any person who has been convicted of an offence specified in the Seventh Schedule if that person—

- (a) has, either in Zimbabwe or elsewhere, been previously convicted in at least three separate trials of any one or more of the offences specified in the Seventh Schedule; and
- (b) had attained the age of twenty-five years when he sustained the last of the three convictions referred to in paragraph (a).

(2) In deciding whether or not to sentence a person to extended imprisonment in terms of this section, a judge shall have regard to all the circumstances of the case and of the offender, and in particular to—

- (a) the seriousness of the offences specified in the Seventh Schedule of which the offender has been convicted; and
- (b) the need to protect the public; and
- (c) the prospects for reforming the offender.

(3) A sentence of extended imprisonment imposed in terms of this section shall endure—

- (a) where the offender has not previously been sentenced to extended imprisonment, for not less than seven years and not more than fifteen years;
- (b) where the offender has previously been sentenced to extended imprisonment, for not less than fifteen years and not more than twenty years; and, when imposing such a sentence, a judge shall inform the offender of the maximum and minimum periods of the sentence specified in paragraph (a) or (b), as may be appropriate.

(4) A person sentenced to extended imprisonment in terms of this section shall be dealt with as provided in any enactment relating to the management of prisons and the treatment of persons so sentenced.

(5) For the purposes of subsection (3), a person who, before the 6th May, 1983, had been declared a habitual criminal shall be deemed to have previously been sentenced to extended imprisonment.

[Section repealed by Act 23 of 2004]

347 Imprisonment or community service in default of payment of fine

(1) Subject to this section, a court which imposes a sentence of a fine upon an offender may do either or both of the following—

- (a) impose, as an alternative punishment to the fine, a sentence of imprisonment of any duration within the limits of the court's punitive jurisdiction;
- (b) permit the offender, as an alternative to paying the fine, to render such community service as may be specified by the court.

(2) The period of any sentence of imprisonment imposed in terms of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) shall not, either alone or together with any period of imprisonment imposed on the offender as a direct punishment for the same offence, exceed the longest period of imprisonment prescribed by any enactment as a punishment for the offence.

(3) Where a court has imposed upon an offender a sentence of a fine without an alternative referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (1) and the fine has not been paid in full or has not been recovered in full by a levy in terms of section three hundred and forty-eight, the court may issue a warrant directing that the offender be arrested and brought before the court, which may thereupon impose such sentence of imprisonment and additionally, or alternatively, permit him to render such community service, as is provided in subsection (1).

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as limiting the power of a court under section three hundred and fifty-eight to postpone or suspend any sentence.

(5) A court may exercise the powers conferred upon it by this section even in relation to an offence prescribed in an enactment which purports—

- (a) to limit the duration of a sentence of imprisonment that may be imposed as an alternative to a fine; or
- (b) to permit only a sentence of imprisonment to be imposed as an alternative to a fine:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply where a minimum penalty is prescribed in the enactment concerned as punishment for the offence.

[Section substituted by section 15 of Act 8 of 1997.]

348 Recovery of fine

(1) When an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the court passing the sentence may in its discretion issue a warrant addressed to the Sheriff or messenger of the court authorizing him to levy the amount by attachment and sale of any movable property belonging to the offender, although the sentence directs that in default of payment of the fine the offender shall be imprisoned or shall be permitted to render community service.

[Subsection amended by section 16 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(2) The amount which may be levied in terms of subsection (1) shall be sufficient to cover, in addition to the fine, the costs and expenses of the warrant and of the attachment and sale thereunder.

(3) A warrant in terms of subsection (1), if issued by the High Court, may be executed anywhere within Zimbabwe.

(4) A warrant in terms of subsection (1), if issued by a magistrate, shall authorize the attachment and sale of the movable property of the offender within the local limits of such magistrate's jurisdiction, and also without such limits when endorsed by a magistrate having jurisdiction in the place where the property is found.

(5) If the proceeds of the sale of the movable property are insufficient to satisfy the amount of the fine and the costs and expenses aforesaid, the High Court may issue a warrant or, in the case of a sentence by a magistrates court, may authorize such magistrates court to issue a warrant for the levy against the immovable property of the offender of the amount unpaid.

(6) Where a court issues a warrant under this section, it may suspend the execution of any sentence of imprisonment imposed as an alternative to the fine and may release the offender upon his executing a bond with or without sureties as the court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before the court or some other court on the day appointed for the return of the warrant, such day not being more than fifteen days from the time of executing the bond, and in the event of the amount of the fine not having been recovered, the sentence of imprisonment may be carried into execution at once or may be suspended as before for a further period or further periods of not more than fifteen days, as the court thinks fit.

[Subsection amended by section 16 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(7) In any case in which an order for the payment of money has been made on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded and the money is not paid forthwith, the court may require the person ordered to make such payment to enter into a bond as provided in subsection (6), and in default of his doing so, may at once pass sentence of imprisonment as if the money had not been recovered.

(8) ...

[Subsection repealed by section 16 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(9) ...

[Subsection repealed by section 16 of Act 8 of 1997.]

(10) ...

[Subsection repealed by section 16 of Act 8 of 1997.]

348A Effect of part payment of fine or part performance of community service

(1) Where part only of a fine imposed on an offender has been paid or recovered by levy under section three hundred and forty-eight—

- (a) any period of imprisonment to be served by the offender as an alternative to the fine shall be reduced by the same proportion, as nearly as possible, as the amount so paid or recovered bears to the total amount of the fine;
- (b) any community service which the offender is permitted to render as an alternative to the payment of the fine shall be reduced to such extent as the court may determine in order to take into account the amount so paid or recovered.

(2) Where an offender renders only part of any community service he is permitted in terms of section three hundred and forty-seven to render as an alternative to a fine, the court may reduce any period of imprisonment which it has imposed as an additional alternative to the fine, to such extent as the court may determine in order to take into account the service the offender has rendered.

(3) A determination in terms of paragraph (b) of subsection (1) or subsection (2) shall be made in the presence of the offender concerned, and subsections (5) and (6) of section three hundred and fifty-eight shall apply, mutatis mutandis, in regard to bringing the offender before the court for that purpose.

(4) No amount shall be accepted in part payment of a fine if it would have the effect of reducing the imprisonment to be served in terms of subsection (1) by a fractional part of a day.

[Section inserted by section 17 of Act 8 of 1997]

349 Court may enforce payment of fine from moneys on accused or salary or wages of accused

Where a person is sentenced to pay a fine, whether with or without an alternative sentence of imprisonment, the court may, without prejudice to any other power under this Act relating to the payment of a fine, enforce payment of the fine, whether as to the whole or part thereof—

- (a) by seizure of moneys upon the person concerned; or
- (b) if money is due or is to become due as salary or wages from any employer of the person concerned, by—
 - (i) from time to time ordering the employer to deduct a specified amount from the salary or wages so due and to pay over such amount to the clerk of the court in question; or
 - (ii) ordering the employer to deduct from time to time a specified amount from the salary or wages from the employer due and to pay over such amount to the clerk of the court in question.

350 Levy of fine and costs on conviction of defamation

When any person is convicted of the unlawful publication of any defamatory matter which was published by means of printing, the prosecutor may levy the fine, if any, and costs out of any property of the offender in like manner as in civil actions.

350A Community service orders

(1) Subject to this section and to regulations made in terms of section three hundred and eighty-nine, a court which convicts a person of any offence may, instead of sentencing him to imprisonment or a fine, make a community service order requiring him to render service for the benefit of the community or any section of the community for such number of hours as shall be specified in the order.

(2) Where a court makes community service orders in respect of two or more offences of which the offender has been convicted, the court may direct that all or any of the hours of service specified in any of the orders shall be concurrent with those specified in any other order, and in the absence of such a direction the hours shall run concurrently.

(3) A court which makes a community service order in respect of an offender may sentence the offender to a fine and additionally, or alternatively, to imprisonment as an alternative punishment, to be paid or served, as the case may be, if he fails to render the service specified in the order.

(4) A court may make a community service order in respect of an offender even if he has been convicted of an offence under an enactment which makes provision only for a fine and additionally, or alternatively, imprisonment as punishment for the offence:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply where a minimum penalty is prescribed in the enactment concerned as punishment for the offence.

[Section inserted by section 18 of Act 8 of 1997.]

350B Performance of community service

(1) Subject to this section and to such conditions and requirements as may be prescribed, an offender in respect of whom a community service order is in force shall render the service specified in the order for the number of hours specified therein.

(2) Unless revoked, a community service order shall remain in force until the offender has rendered the number of hours' service specified in it.

[Section inserted by section 18 of Act 8 of 1997.]

350C Breach of community service order

(1) Subject to this section, if a magistrate has reason to believe, whether from information on oath or otherwise, that an offender has failed to comply with any requirement of a community service order, the magistrate may order the offender to be brought—

- (a) before the High Court, where the community service order was made by that court; or
- (b) before a magistrates court, where the community service order was made by that court; for the purposes of subsection (3).

(2) The magistrate may, if necessary for the purpose of an order under subsection (1), order the offender to be arrested without warrant and, unless the offender is admitted to bail in terms of Part XI, to be detained in prison.

(3) If the court is satisfied that an offender who has been brought before it in terms of subsection (1) has failed to comply with any requirement of a community service order, the court may—

- (a) amend or extend the order in such manner as the court thinks will best ensure that the offender renders the service specified in the order; or
- (b) revoke the order and—

- (i) order the offender to pay any fine or undergo any imprisonment that was imposed on him as an alternative punishment in terms of subsection (3) of section three hundred and fifty A; or
- (ii) where the court that made the order did not impose an alternative punishment in terms of subsection (3) of section three hundred and fifty A, deal with the offender for the offence in respect of which the order was made in any manner in which that court could have dealt with him;

(c) make such other order or direction in the matter as the court considers just.

(4) Where a court makes an order referred to in subparagraph (i) of paragraph (b) of subsection (3), the court may reduce any fine to be paid or imprisonment to be undergone by the offender concerned to such extent as the court considers appropriate in order to take into account any service the offender rendered in compliance with the community service order concerned.

(5) An offender who is dealt with by a court under the powers conferred on it by subparagraph (ii) of paragraph (b) of subsection (3) shall have the same right of appeal against any sentence or order of the court as if the sentence or order had been imposed in a criminal trial.

[Section inserted by section 18 of Act 8 of 1997.]

350D Amendment or revocation of community service order

(1) Subject to this section, on the application of—

- (a) the offender concerned or, if he is a minor, his parent or lawful guardian; or
- (b) the Prosecutor-General or a public prosecutor;

a court may—

- (i) amend a community service order; or
- (ii) revoke a community service order and deal with the offender for the offence in respect of which the order was made in any manner in which the court which made the order could have dealt with him;

if the court considers it would be in the interests of justice to do so having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made.

(2) A community service order made by—

- (a) the High Court, shall not be amended or revoked in terms of subsection (1) except by the High Court;
- (b) a magistrate, shall not be amended or revoked in terms of subsection (1) except by that magistrate or by another magistrate who has the same or greater jurisdiction to impose punishment in criminal cases.

(3) A court may order an offender to be brought before it for the purposes of an application in terms of subsection (1) and, if necessary, may order him to be arrested without warrant and, unless admitted to bail in terms of Part XI, to be detained in prison.

(4) An offender who is dealt with by a court under the powers conferred on it by paragraph (ii) of subsection (1) shall have the same right of appeal against any sentence or order of the court as if the sentence or order had been imposed in a criminal trial.

(b) the parent or legal guardian of the person concerned; that a further period in a training institute, reform school or certified institution would advance the education or welfare of a person who has been placed in such an institute, school or institution and whose period of retention has expired or is about to expire, the court may order that person to return to or remain in the institute, school or institution concerned for a further period or periods, as it may fix, and may at any time revoke such order.

(5) If a medical practitioner has certified that a person on whom corporal punishment is to be inflicted in terms of this section is not in a fit state to receive the punishment or any part of it, the person who was to have inflicted the punishment shall forthwith submit the certificate to the court that passed the sentence or to a court of like jurisdiction and the court may thereupon, if satisfied that the person concerned is not in a fit state to receive the punishment or any part of it, amend the sentence as it thinks appropriate.

(6) Subject to this section, the manner in which and place at which corporal punishment shall be inflicted, and the person who shall inflict it, shall be as prescribed.

(1) A person convicted of an offence not punishable with death may, in lieu of or in addition to any punishment to which he is liable, be ordered by the High Court to enter into his own recognizances, with or without sureties, in such amount as the court thinks fit that he shall keep the peace and be of good behaviour for a time to be fixed by the court, and may be ordered to be imprisoned until such recognizances with sureties, if so directed, are entered into:

Provided that the imprisonment for not entering into the recognizance shall in no case exceed one year.

(2) If any person is convicted of an offence involving assault or injury to the person, a magistrates court may, in lieu of or in addition to any other punishment, order that the convicted person shall give recognizances, with or without sureties, in an amount not exceeding level six for a period not exceeding one year to keep the peace and to refrain from committing any injury against the complainant.

(3) If any person having been ordered to give recognizances under subsection (2) refuses or fails to do so, the court may order him to be committed to prison for a period not exceeding one month, unless such recognizances are sooner found.

E. General and miscellaneous provisions as to punishments

356 Payment by accused persons of fines which may be imposed for minor offences in lieu of appearance in court

(1) When any person has been summoned or warned to appear in a magistrates court or has been arrested or has been informed by a peace officer, by written notice referred to in subsection (1) of section one hundred and forty-one or otherwise, that it is intended to institute criminal proceedings against him for any offence, and a prescribed officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the court which will try the said person for such offence will, on convicting such person of such offence, not impose a sentence of imprisonment or a fine exceeding level three, such person may sign and deliver to such prescribed officer a document admitting that he is guilty of the said offence and—

(a) deposit with such prescribed officer such sum of money as the latter may fix; or

(b) furnish to such prescribed officer such security as the latter thinks sufficient for the payment of any fine which the court trying the case in question may lawfully impose therefor; not exceeding level three or the maximum of the fine with which such offence is punishable, whichever is the lesser, and such person shall thereupon not be required to appear in court to answer a charge of having committed the said offence.

[Subsection amended by section 4 of Act 22 of 2001.]

(2) The document, when signed and delivered in terms of subsection (1), shall forthwith be transmitted to the clerk of the court before which the person was summoned or warned to appear or, where he has not been summoned or warned to attend a particular court, to the clerk of any magistrates court and shall be entered by the clerk in the records of that court.

(3) As soon as the document has been recorded in terms of subsection (2) it shall be laid before the court and the court shall thereupon—

(a) proceed to convict such person of the offence charged and forthwith sentence him to a fine not exceeding level three in accordance with law, whether or not it has jurisdiction in terms of section 56 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10]; or

(b) by endorsement on the document signify its refusal to convict such person in accordance with this section.

(4) If payment of the fine has not been made in accordance with the terms of the security, the security may, if movable property has been accepted therefor, be enforced by the sale thereof, and if any balance of the proceeds of sale remains, after deduction of the amount of the fine, it shall be paid to the offender.

(5) If the sum deposited is not sufficient to pay the fine imposed, the balance remaining due shall be recovered from the offender in a manner provided by section three hundred and forty-eight.

(6) If the sum deposited is greater than the fine imposed by the court, the difference shall be refunded to the offender.

(7) Where the court has refused to convict the person concerned, as provided in paragraph (b) of subsection (3), the sum deposited shall be refunded to the person concerned and he may be prosecuted in the ordinary course and, in that case, if he has already been summoned or warned, he shall be summoned afresh to answer such charge as the public prosecutor may prefer against him.

(8) Any magistrate of the court which will try the person concerned for the offence may advise the prescribed officer as to the sum of money which the court is likely to consider an appropriate fine in any case and, in fixing the sum of money to be deposited under this section, the prescribed officer shall have regard to such advice.

(9) For the purpose of deciding whether to convict the person concerned in accordance with this section or determining the amount of the fine to be imposed, the court may have regard to any statements relevant to the offence charged which have been given to the police by any person having knowledge thereof.

(10) Where the document mentioned in subsection (1) purports to have been signed by a director, manager or secretary of a corporate body as the representative of such corporate body, such director, manager or secretary shall, notwithstanding anything contained in proviso (i) to subsection (3) of section three hundred and eighty-five, be presumed to have been authorized by such corporate body to plead guilty on its behalf, unless the contrary is proved.

(11) The magistrate who convicted a person under paragraph (a) of subsection (3) may, notwithstanding anything contained in any enactment, set aside any such conviction and order the refund to the person concerned of the fine paid by him in respect thereof, in any case in which the magistrate is satisfied that such person should not have been convicted.

357 Adjudication of minor cases in absence of accused

(1) When a summons has been issued in respect of any case in which the court has summary jurisdiction and in which the penalty prescribed by law is a fine, and only in default of payment of such fine, imprisonment, the person summoned need not appear personally and may appear through a legal practitioner duly authorized thereto:

Provided that, where there is no legal practitioner available practising before such court, then any other person may appear on behalf of the accused.

(2) Should the person summoned fail to appear, either personally or through a legal practitioner, the court may, if satisfied that such summons was duly served, and if further satisfied that the ends of justice will be met, proceed to hear such case and adjudicate thereon as fully and effectually as if such person had appeared.

(3) When a person has been convicted of an offence in his absence in terms of subsection (2), the court may direct the collection of any fine imposed, together with the costs of such collection, and further direct that, on failure to pay such fine and costs, the offender be arrested and committed to prison to undergo any sentence of imprisonment that may have been imposed as an alternative to such fine, and such direction shall be by warrant in the prescribed form.

(5) Subject to section 55 of the Magistrates Court Act [Chapter 7:10] and of subsections (12) and (13), if a magistrate has reason to believe, whether from information on oath or otherwise, that a condition of any postponement or suspension made in terms of paragraph (a), (b) or (c) of subsection (2) has been contravened or that the offender has failed to pay a fine or any instalment thereof on a date fixed in terms of paragraph (c) of subsection (2), he may, whether before or after the expiration of the period of postponement or suspension, order the offender to be brought—

- (a) where the postponement or suspension was made by the High Court, before that court; or

- (b) before the date part of such amount has been paid in terms of the order of suspension; and
- (c) solely because of the contravention of the condition specified in paragraph (a) the court, in terms of subsection (7), commits the offender to undergo the suspended period of imprisonment;

the provisions of subsection (10) of section three hundred and forty-eight shall apply, mutatis mutandis, as though the amount referred to in paragraph (a) were a fine and the suspended period of imprisonment were the period of imprisonment referred to in that subsection.

(10) Where the contravention of a condition of postponement or suspension made in terms of paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (2) by the High Court consists of a conviction and sentence of a magistrates court, a record of the proceedings shall be obtained and transmitted to the registrar of the High Court and subsection (2) of section 55 of the Magistrates Court [Chapter 7:10] shall apply, mutatis mutandis.

(11) A magistrates court may, in terms of paragraph (c) of subsection (2), direct as a condition of the suspension of a warrant that the offender shall, if he fails to pay a fine or any instalment thereof at a specified time on any day fixed in terms of that paragraph, surrender himself to the clerk of the court concerned at such time on such day unless he has, before that time, obtained an extension of time from the court for the payment of the fine or instalment, as the case may be, and any direction in terms of this subsection shall be explained to the offender at the time of the passing of sentence.

(12) If the offender surrenders himself in accordance with a direction in terms of subsection (11) or any extension of time obtained in terms of that subsection, the provisions of subsection (7) shall apply, mutatis mutandis.

(13) If the offender fails to surrender himself in accordance with a direction in terms of subsection (11) or any extension of time obtained in terms of that subsection—

- (a) subsections (5), (6) and (7) shall apply; and
- (b) when the offender is brought before the court as referred to in subsection (7), the court may, in a summary manner, inquire into the failure of the offender to surrender himself and, unless it is proved that he has a reasonable excuse for such failure, the court may sentence him to a fine not exceeding level three or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

[Subsection amended by section 4 of Act 22 of 2001.]
